Happy Solution Sought By B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government served notice Tuesday it wants to settle the valuation of the expropriated B.C. Electric Company to the satisfaction of all.

The announcement was made during a complicated B.C. Supreme Court case over the control of the giant utility, a matter left undecided at least until Thursday.

The government made clear that although it would like to settle the disputed value of the company it took over Aug. 1, 1961, it still plans to appeal a Supreme Court judgment upsetting the takeover.

ADDITIONAL LAWS

Mr. Justice J. G. Rutan indicated he thought that the government could make the takeover valid through additional legislation.

The judge adjourned until Thursday further hearing of motions by the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority to block any move to interfere with the BCE as part of the authority.

The B.C. Power Corporation, BCE parent, is seeking to repossess and operate the big power-gas-transportation complex.

NEW INSTRUCTIONS
The adjournment came after M. M. McFarlane, counsel for the attorney-general, told the court he had "new instructions" about the willingness of the Crown to settle the issue of BCE value.

The value was set at $193,000,000 by Chief Justice Sherwood Lett in a judgment a week ago which found the utility's 1961 expropriation by the province and its amalgamation into the authority constitutionally invalid.

BOTH PARTIES
Mr. McFarlane said the Crown had indicated a willingness to settle the value issue "to the satisfaction of both parties and the government will persist in efforts to achieve that end." He did not elaborate.

Douglas McK. Brown, counsel for BCP-BCE, invited communications from government representatives during the adjournment. Lawyers for both sides conferred briefly in the corridor after court recessed and there were indications more formal consultation will be held later.

Review Urged Of Foreign Aid

ONSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian government should review its foreign aid program instead of pouring money into countries which fail to live up to commitments, a doctor who has worked under the Colombo Plan said Tuesday.

Dr. Claude H. Vipond, one of five Canadian doctors and a nurse sent to Malaysia two years ago under the Colombo Plan, said in an interview: "I thought there was a real need in that country and help would be welcomed—but I was wrong."

"The Sultan of Pahang is building a $2,500,000 palace while trucks repairing the roads in his state have been donated by the government of Canada."

"We were promised beds for patients, an operating room and the necessary equipment," said Dr. Vipond, "but none of these was ever provided."

Dr. Vipond suggested a seven-point program for future Canadian foreign aid programs:

- Direct aid only to basic social needs such as food, education and medicine, including birth control.
- Recipient countries must show a will to improve their own conditions, devoting reasonable proportions of their own resources to the areas designated as needy.
- Canada must have administrative authority—more than just an advisory capacity.
- All aid must be clearly designated as to origin, enabling recipients and Canadians to judge its effectiveness.
- External aid officials should have had experience in the field.
- Canadian aid personnel should be distinctively Canadian.
- Canadian aid should be more concentrated in fewer areas. Canada could apply its aid in several fields in one or two countries.

THIS IS RUSSIA TODAY

Pants Big Joke

People Thirst for 'Nice Things'

• A Canadian Press reporter travelling in the Soviet Union finds the country lagging behind the West in standards of material comfort.

By ALAN HARVEY
Second of a Series

MOSCOW (CP)—Gracious living is still a distant vista in the land of the socialist millennium. The flaws are often tiny, but frustrating. There are virtually no deodorants, no baking powders, no cake mixes, no ballpoint pens, no sticky tape, no pencil sharpeners, no pop-up toasters. Toothpaste is gritty. Food lacks finesse.

Some convinced Communists admit the West is ahead in the material race but claim the Soviets are gaining ground. Anyway, as one party supporter put it: "You don't know where you're going. You have no goal, no purpose in life. We have an aim, a faith, a principle—working for the collective good."

Nevertheless, Western patience may wear thin at elementary Soviet-style packaging, at the lack of gloss and sheen, at the rough edges of living.

Sound and Fury

Plumbing is usually an affair of broken tiles, protruding pipes and primitive fittings. A flush toilet, when it works, produces sound and fury.

This illustrates a Soviet characteristic. They have a strong sense of priorities. Small things bore them. They stake all their chips on the big hand and ignore anything secondary.

When the first Soviet woman soared into space, an exasperated Canadian in Moscow exclaimed: "To heck with the cosmonauts! Let them only learn to make matches!"

Tempo Increasing

It must be said without patronizing that this country, starting from way back, is picking up momentum. It is trying for better quality. The people are thirsting for "nice things." Just let a shipment of lace underwear arrive from Czechoslovakia or Hungary and whoosh!—they're sold out faster than it takes to form a queue.

Russia's thick cotton women's panties are a laughing stock and prompted a national joke about how such unflattering items can be reconciled with the annual increase in population.

Prices Chastly

Some prices freeze the blood. Vegetables and fruits undergo startling seasonal variations. Cucumbers may sell as high as $2 a pound. An orange can cost 40 cents. A slab of chocolate, slightly larger than an ordinary bar, cost me the equivalent of $2.

Ice cream is tasty and reasonably inexpensive, though two colossal helpings in steaming Samarkand set me back 70 kopecks, nearly $1.

Shoes Costly

Ladies' shoes cause anguish. A really chic pair—the best are from Italy and Britain—cost between 40 to 50 rubles, in the realm of $50 to $65 or about half the average monthly industrial wage. Cheap Russian shoes lack allure and don't stand up to hard wear.

Prayer for Understanding Parents

Dying Child Can Save Baby

DENVER (AP)—The only chance 10-month-old Nancy Joanne Schudies has to live is for some other baby to die. The child lies in her crib in Colorado General Hospital where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Schudies of Scotts-bluff, Neb., wait and pray.

Doctors explain Nancy Joanne was born without ducts in her liver. These are canals by which body fluids and substances are conveyed.

They said Nancy Joanne's only hope is for the transplant of a healthy liver from another child doomed to die from some other ailment. The donor would have to be a child not older than 3.

"It's terrible to think that the only chance for my baby is to find another child which is going to die," said Mrs. Schudies Tuesday. "but I can only pray that we do find parents of such a child somewhere who will understand."

Haiti Invasion

No. 2 City Rebel Target
Duvalier Fortifies Palace

PAPA DOC DIGS IN

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) —The Haitian rebel command reported Tuesday its armed invasion force and army deserters joining it have massed before Haiti's second city, Cap Haitien, and sent patrols beyond it.

In Port au Prince, the Haitian capital, 30 miles to the south, dictator President Francois (Papa Doc) Duvalier, was reported flying supplies northward in an effort to keep the invasion from spreading westward and to the south.

BUGGED COUNTRY

Rugged country broken only by mountain roads and trails stands between the invaders in the north and the forces of Duvalier, including the Ton Ton Macoutes, the terrorist, security force Duvalier built up to offset military disloyalties.

Other reports from Port au Prince said Duvalier was fortifying the national palace and concentrating forces for a stand if the invaders cross the mountains or make a new landing from the sea in that area.

UNCONFIRMED REPORTS

There were unconfirmed reports during the day that Cap Haitien had fallen to the rebels. In the first news from the front to reach Santo Domingo, Paul Verna, spokesman for the Haitian rebels, said the ranks of the 500 invaders, who landed Monday at Fort Liberté on the north coast of Haiti, have been swelled by regular army deserters.

Cap Haitien is a northern port city of 25,000, 90 miles north of the capital, Port au Prince.

WOULD SLICE LAND

Verna said the rebel strategy now is to slice off north Haiti from the south through Gonaives on the west coast to Ouanaminthe.

Haitian government charges that the invaders came from the adjoining Dominican Republic were aided by the council of the Organization of American States in Washington at an emergency meeting called on the plea of Fern D. Riquelme, Haiti's OAS representative.

The Dominican Republic has insisted that it has barred the use of Dominican soil for bases of the political foes of Duvalier.

EXILE INVADERS

But Rene Chalmers, Haiti's foreign minister, sent a message to the OAS charging that the exile invaders "departed from the Dominican Republic."

Chalmers' message said it was established that the troops, headed by ex-gen. Leon Cantave "and aided by former officers of the Haitian army" had attacked the border town of Ouanaminthe.

He put the invasion number at about 300 men.

Cantave, their leader, is a tall, white-haired Negro of 52 who has been in political exile for six years.

Complaint Given UN

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Haiti Tuesday deposited with the UN Security Council the text of its complaint to the Organization of American States concerning the invasion of its territory, saying the facts of the case "will undoubtedly be the cause of serious concern to the Security Council."

West Asks Assurance For Berlin

MOSCOW (AP)—The United States and Britain have proposed that Communist guarantees of Western interests in Berlin be linked to Premier Khrushchev's East-West non-aggression pact proposal, diplomatic sources reported Tuesday.

The Western proposal was put forward by U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Earl of Home in exploratory talks Tuesday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, the sources said.

The two Western foreign policy chiefs also were reported to have told Gromyko they would be unable to negotiate formally on the pact until they have completed consultations with their NATO allies.

NATO DECISION

Conference sources said Rusk told Gromyko that the Western allies are not prepared to talk business on a non-aggression pact until the 15-nation NATO alliance makes up its collective mind on the matter.

Details of the proposed link between Berlin and that pact are not expected to be divulged until the completion of NATO consultations.

U.S. State Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman said in Washington Tuesday that Britain and the United States are thinking in terms of unilateral declarations of non-aggression from both sides.

Blast Kills Miners

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—An explosion in the world's deepest gold mine Tuesday killed nine Negro miners and injured 23 others. One was reported missing and believed dead.

The blast, at 9,000 feet, also injured three white men.

Rescuers battling to free the missing miner said they would have to tunnel through about 100 feet of rock.

Yard Probing Possibility Of Perjury in Ward Case

LONDON (Reuters) — Allegations that a witness in the Stephen Ward case confessed to lying at the trial were under investigation by Scotland Yard, police said today.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said the witness, whom he did not identify, denied the allegation.

He said a report on investigations into the case of Jamaican singer Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon would be submitted to the director of public prosecutions. (See also Page 8.)

This appeared to be the report mentioned in The Daily Sketch today. The newspaper says the report would recommend arrest of several persons on charges of conspiring to pervert the course of justice in connection with Gordon's case.

The Scotland Yard spokesman said a previous report was sent to the prosecution director before a criminal appeal court quashed Gordon's three-year sentence for assault last week.

Gordon, a 31-year-old Jamaican jazz singer, is a former lover of Christine Keeler, 21, who lived with the late society osteopath Stephen Ward and whose love affair with former war minister John Profumo caused a national scandal.

The Daily Sketch's chief crime reporter, Peter Duffy, wrote that Scotland Yard officers would recommend the arrests in a report to the director of public prosecutions, Sir Theobald Mathew.

Gordon was released from prison last week after he appealed successfully against his three-year prison sentence for assaulting Miss Keeler, who has been resting at a friend's apartment since last week.

In another development, actress Corinne Grey's lawyer said Tuesday she and her husband will travel to Los Angeles later this week to bring back evidence they claim will "vindicate" Ward.

Dog's Rescue of Master Cancels Date with Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — Greif, a German shepherd who saved his master's life during the weekend, will have to keep a date with death after all.

Eric Heinze, 35, of Surrey, said he decided last week to have Greif destroyed because he was too friendly for a watchdog.

Heinze fell into a deep pool of water at the bottom of a 50-foot gravel pit on his property during the weekend. Hurt and unable to pull himself from the water, Heinze was in danger of drowning before Greif slid down the steep wall and, grabbing his master's arm with his jaws, pulled him to the side of the pool.

Greif stayed with Heinze for six hours until searchers called by his wife, Anneliese, arrived.

"I'd have drowned without Greif," Heinze said in hospital. "I never thought he had it in him. We'll keep him now."

'Never Better'

'Needs Changes'

How's Old Confederation?

HALIFAX (CP)—Said British Columbia's Premier W. A. C. Bennett: "Confederation has never been in better shape."

He paused and went on: "Canadians from coast to coast understand each other better in 1963 than at any period in our history."

Mr. Bennett said no one wants uniformity in Canada. Understanding and co-operation were essential.

In a separate interview, Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec was asked to comment on the British Columbia leader's view of the status of Confederation.

"Oh, no. We need amendments to the constitution," said Mr. Lesage. Asked what amendments he would seek, Premier Lesage said it was too lengthy a subject to discuss in a corridor interview: "We'd be here all night."

Gangland Offers $100,000 For Slaying of Squealer

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Word went out Tuesday that the underworld has offered $100,000 for the slaying of Joseph Valachi, a mobster who had spilled all to federal agents about a syndicate that rules organized crime in America.

Justice department sources said: "We are going to take every precaution necessary to protect this man."

Valachi, whose fear of gangland revenge drove him to break a 23-year-old blood oath of silence, has given the justice department the names of a dozen men believed to be the overlords of a secret, terror-ridden syndicate of organized crime in eight cities.

The convicted New York narcotics dealer was removed from the U.S. penitentiary in Atlanta, Ga., a year ago and is now in hiding under strict federal guard.

One government source indicated that Valachi's hideout has been changed several times in an attempt to elude would-be executioners. There are suspicions that the underworld already has tried to locate the 58-year-old Valachi's whereabouts.

Considering the vast scope of the syndicate's operations, the $100,000 contract for Valachi's murder was said to be "only peanuts" — a standard price tag for gangland extermination.

The syndicate presumably began suspecting Valachi was informing when he was transferred from Atlanta.

Informing brings an automatic death sentence in the underworld.

Thanks to Valachi, the government has gained unprecedented knowledge of the hierarchy and operations of a Mafia-style syndicate whose business in gambling, narcotics, money lending and extortion runs into billions of dollars a year.

Addicts Panicky

TORONTO (CP)—The smashing last week of a drug syndicate, in which more than $100,000 worth of heroin was seized, is causing panic "at street level," police say.

An RCMP spokesman said addicts, shuffling about Toronto streets Sunday, "couldn't make a score."

Sabotage Silences Telephones

The strike, against the General Telephone Company, has seen peaceful picketing by day and violence at night. Dynamite blasts have been set off; flaming gasoline bombs; throwing windows; relay units pulled out and destroyed or burned; telephone poles cut down by the score with power saws; cables cut with axes; non-strikers intimidated; and emergency repairmen assaulted.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers has denied any part in sabotage that has knocked out up to 62,000 phones.

Exchange for Test Pact

De Gaulle Spurns Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—French President Charles de Gaulle has rejected President Kennedy's offer of nuclear assistance if France accedes to the partial nuclear test ban treaty signed in Moscow Monday. It was disclosed Tuesday.

Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs W. Averell Harriman made this disclosure in a "Voice of America" radio interview.

"President de Gaulle has indicated that he is not interested, if I read his letter correctly, in receiving nuclear assistance," Harriman said in reference to a letter from de Gaulle to Kennedy.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger confirmed earlier Tuesday that Kennedy had received such a letter, but he refused to disclose its contents or discuss it.

HELSINKI (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan cautioned Tuesday night against putting too high a value on the partial nuclear test-ban treaty signed in Moscow, but said East and West are being drawn closer together by "underlying forces basic to humanity."

The British leader, who is on a four-day visit to Finland, told guests at a banquet in the presidential palace that he believes the treaty will be "an encouragement to East and West to participate in negotiations and discussions in the knowledge that we have proved to ourselves and to each other that we can agree."

Politician Rebuked

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., was chided by a negro leader before a crowded room of nearly 100 NAACP members Tuesday for his refusal to support President's civil rights bill.

Clarence Mitchell, Washington director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told Dirksen it was "most unfortunate" that he has made it clear he cannot support what most negroes consider the key to civil rights legislation.

Standing next to Dirksen, Mitchell said "It is not a question whether you are for this title (public accommodations) but whether you are going to do something about these people... getting shot at, hit, or even killed when going into a restaurant..."

Dirksen, who has co-sponsored every other part of the administration's civil rights package, said he has not changed his views on public accommodations.

Mississippi Vote Heavy

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—Mississippi voters turned out in heavy numbers Tuesday to pick a successor to segregationist Gov. Ross Barnett. The balloting sparked at least two racial incidents.

At Greenwood, where integrationists have conducted an intensive voter registration drive, 59 unregistered Negroes turned up at city hall and attempted to cast ballots.

Three other Negroes who made a similar attempt at Ruleville were arrested.

Search for a Problem

IN WINNIPEG last week Daniel Johnson, leader of the Union Nationale opposition party in Quebec—but speaking in his capacity as a member of a constitutional committee of the Quebec legislature set up to find out what the province wants to report to the federal Royal Commission on bicentennialism—came out with this piece of advice for his fellow citizens across the country: "All Canadians should wake up to the problems of bicentennialism."

To many Canadians who have long thought of Canada as a united nation, the words have something of an ominous ring about them.

Certainly, Mr. Johnson's choice of the words "wake up" rather than some other phrase of less active connotation or mood left the impression that the problems to which he referred were as legion as they were obvious and that it but remained for the people of Canada to open their eyes to see them.

As head of a provincial political party which for years maintained its position of power through promoting the proposition that it was better to be a good Quebecois than a good Canadian, Mr. Johnson might have been thought to be particularly able to elucidate his statement further, even though it might have meant the airing of only one side of the question at this time.

True, however, Mr. Johnson failed to do. True, he did go so far as to say that a number of Quebec politicians would be touring Canada this summer "so we know what we are talking about when we sit down in committee in September."

He also said that it was important that Quebec should determine what it wants because "I don't think other Canadians know what we want. They must be frustrated by all our beeping."

That, Mr. Johnson, is the understatement of the year. Frustrated is far too narrow a word to describe what the rest of Canada feels about the vague wants and ambitions of Quebec.

How can anyone know what Quebec wants if the Quebecois themselves don't know?

The Quebec politicians might do well to first look within their own province rather than outside it in their search for the faults they claim exist. Or at least make up their minds what it is they want before handing out gratuitous advice to the rest of Canada.

Illogical Idea

ALDERMEN would now appear to have gone almost as far as they reasonably can in accommodating the demand of affected merchants for restoration of parking on the west side of Government Street in an eight-block bottleneck area—barring the institution of one-way, southbound traffic which would bring its own complications. It would, for instance, place an immense northbound burden on Douglas Street, presumably including the big lumber rigs that now use Government.

Cancellation of the parking prohibition on Sundays and in the evenings, the first concession by city council, was a move to which hardly anyone could object. Allowing parking on Saturdays when civil service and lumber carrier traffic is not a factor likewise seems sensible. Perhaps the city could go one step farther without seriously impeding the Government Street vehicular flow and legalize stopping for commercial delivery and loading purposes in the quieter forenoon and afternoon hours.

It is difficult to see logic behind the drive of Mr. Elmer McEwen to "have it all put back the way it was, with parking meters." Does the former alderman believe that motorists can be captured as customers by blocking their path, or convinced of the joys of downtown shopping by the frustrations and annoyances, if not hazards, he would have city hall reimpose on them?

It was known when the construction of civic parking facilities was projected that clearing congested roadways for freer movement of traffic was part of the plan, and it is late in the day now to be objecting still to this long-foreseen feature of city-centre improvement.

Vivid Comparison

A STRIKING measure of aviation progress has just been provided by the flight of two Cleveland businessmen around the earth in 46 hours, 41 minutes.

By odd coincidence this achievement comes just after the 25th anniversary of the dash of Howard Hughes with four companions around the world in 93 hours, 14 minutes—eight minutes less than double the businessmen's time.

And the Cleveland men flew in commercial airliners.

Independence for B.C.

BRITISH COLUMBIA should quit Canada immediately and set up an independent state. We would be far better off under our provincial Social Credit government than under the old Liberals who have taken millions and millions in corporation taxes from B.C.

If B.C. Hydro goes back to B.C. Electric, we shall pay millions more to Ottawa and our power rates (twice reduced by Social Credit) will be doubled.

Disgusted

I am writing to express my disgust at the shocking insult that has been perpetrated on the people of Canada by the government in Ottawa in voting themselves such a whacking increase in pay. They were already overpaid for what they did and for what most of them would be able to earn on the open market, and now they have voted themselves almost double and who has to pay for it? Why Johnny Public of course!

According to Ottawa figures the average earning of Canadians is $4,000 per year. What on earth makes a politician think he is worth $18,000. Cor-

After 50 Years

Australia's Capital Blossoms

By WILLIAM FITTER from Sydney

THERE is an air of excitement in Canberra today. In a month or two water from the dammed Molonglo River will begin flowing into Lake Burley Griffin and the capital of Australia, after 50 years of early hopes, then scorn, neglect and controversy, will blossom as its original architect planned it—or very nearly so.

Canberra was born at the turn of this century, when the six self-governing Australian states decided to federate into the Commonwealth of Australia. The states retained their parliaments and independence in many ways but handed over to the newly-created federal parliament all broadly national responsibilities—defence, customs and excise, foreign affairs, much of the health services, and control and development of New Guinea and Papua and the vast, barely inhabited Northern Territory.

The states, especially New South Wales and Victoria (the two comparative giants in population and wealth) eyed the national body suspiciously at first. Jealousies precluded the selection of either state's capital—Sydney or Melbourne—as the national capital. A new city must be built and preferably one sited equidistant from Sydney and Melbourne. After years of wrangling, while the federal parliament sat temporarily in Melbourne, the choice fell to Canberra, somewhat nearer Sydney (150 air miles) than Melbourne (295 air miles) but sufficiently removed from both to ensure a separate individuality.

When building began in 1911, Canberra was merely a name. The site was part of a sheep station—a vast plain, watered by the Molonglo River, dominated by a couple of modest hills, Black Mountain and Mt. Atnalla, hot in summer and bleak in winter, as is the way with most Australian inland areas. Indeed, about this time somebody described it acidly as "a good sheep station ruined."

But Burley Griffin, a young American architect who had won a world-wide competition with his design for the new capital, was widely enthusiastic. He planned a spacious garden city with government buildings grouped south of the river, a business quarter to the north and attractive villas in model suburbs. The Molonglo, an unpredictable and untidy stream, he proposed to reshape into an elaborate series of lakes.

It was uphill work. Canberra was a windswept plain, broken only by the odd native gum tree. As building proceeded, a nursery had to be established and thousands of English trees raised for transplanting. Nor were natural handicaps to be overlooked. The First World War, the economic depression of the 1930s, and then the Second World War checked or halted progress for long stretches.

By 1947, Canberra, the national capital by name, was still little more than a village, though, with its thousands of trees grown to maturity and its spacious lawns, a beautiful one. Its population was just over 15,000. Building and development had been stationary since 1939. Many important government departments were still quartered in Melbourne and anyone who could hastened to get away from the place to escape its dead weekends.

As the post-war boom gathered way, however, a few individuals and organizations and, finally, the federal government, became seized with the idea that it was about time Canberra was made a truly national capital or the whole concept abandoned.

Action followed in 1956 when the federal government appointed a National Capital Development Commission and decided to transfer various government departments from Melbourne within four years.

By 1960, Canberra's population had grown to 56,449, and everywhere new office buildings, schools, shops and houses were filling up the gaps in the central city area and spreading into adjacent sheep-lands. There has been no slackening in the past couple of years. The city's population has passed 70,000 and, with every indication that the present annual growth of 10 to 12 per cent will continue, Canberra expects to reach 100,000 in 1969 and 250,000 by the end of this century.

The appointment of the National Development Commission ensured that this mushroom development did not conflict with the original concept of Canberra as a planned garden city. Invested with extraordinary wide powers—wider than any other city planning body in the world—the commission has been able to lay down and enforce the highest standards in all new buildings, from government offices to villas and blocks of flats.

It has been able, too, to carry to fruition the most controversial part of Burley Griffin's prize-winning plan—the lakes scheme. Many experts doubted its feasibility, but the chief commissioner, Mr. J. W. Overall, has always been a lakes champion and he has pressed through an ambitious, if slightly modified, scheme at a cost of some £2,500,000. Where Burley Griffin planned a series of lakes, Overall is putting the finishing touches to one large, irregular-shaped lake some four miles long by up to half a mile wide, pushed into three basins.

completed and the other nearly ready, will span the lake, which will divide the administrative section of Canberra from the civic centre, the main business and shopping areas. The level of the lake will be controlled by flood gates four and half-miles long up the Molonglo River. It should provide good fishing, boating and sailing.

When filled by the end of the year, the lake will bring a new cohesion to Canberra, covering the meandering and somewhat scruffy bed of the Molonglo as it passes through the city, coordinating traffic and bringing a lakeside beauty to many government buildings and several suburbs. Eventually, a permanent Parliament House—the present building was designed as a temporary expedient—will rise on the southern shore of Central Basin, the main section of the three-basin lake which will be bounded by formal gardens, lawns and pickering areas. Already the new Canberra, the fastest expanding city in Australia, is attracting 500,000 tourists a year. Private enterprise is matching the government in building activity, with new hotels, motels, big departmental stores and business premises. The Australian National University, founded in 1946 as a small, purely research institution, has incorporated the early Canberra College which came under Melbourne University's jurisdiction and is expanding rapidly to cater for an expected 4,000 students within the next 20 years.

It's a far cry from the 1947 Canberra, but Burley Griffin can rest peacefully in his grave. His ideal city is taking shape at last.

Nixon Out . . . for Now

By MARQUE CHILDS

THE word circulating among the politically wise in this cynical capital is: Don't count Richard Nixon out for 1964.

Nixon has formally renounced all future political ambition. When he left his California base to move to New York, it seemed a confirmation that he was out of politics. But events are shaping up that could leave him with no choice even if his resolution was not qualified by the temptation inevitable for one who missed the grand prize by such a hair-line margin.

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller is out to stop Sen. Barry Goldwater and the right wing from capturing the Republican organization and the '64 nomination. He has launched a head-on attack and he means, or so he has told his political allies, to go right down the line in the presidential primaries.

Thus far, however, he has not made appreciable progress in overcoming the handicap of his divorce and remarriage. The time may come—and perhaps as early as the New Hampshire primary next March—when it will be apparent to all concerned, including the governor, that his own candidacy will not do the trick. At that point the ancient political axiom—you can't beat something with nothing—must be reckoned with.

Rockefeller might turn to Nixon, prevail on him to overcome his reluctance and make the supreme sacrifice for his party. After all, they got together in that midnight rendezvous in Rockefeller's apartment in 1960 and agreed on compromise points for the GOP platform. The Goldwaters were angered by what they considered a pre-convention sellout by Nixon, who nevertheless had his way in the platform committee.

The logic of the situation could also point to Nixon rather than to Governor Scranton or Romney or any of the other possible alternates. Nixon has a large and loyal following in the party. Many Republicans feel he was counted out in 1960 and they would like to see him get another chance against JFK.

With Europe as a sounding board, he has been making political ovals. In the course of his pleasure tour with his wife and daughters he has given a number of interviews. Once more he is proving his mastery of the "Yes, but . . ." technique.

He has indicated he would approve the nuclear test-ban treaty. But he went on to say that this must not seem to ratify the status of the peoples behind the Iron Curtain. The intimation was that the treaty should be amended to provide for bettering the lot of the captive peoples. While this has obvious political mileage here at home, it could mean death for the treaty.

It is sometimes forgotten that a second Rockefeller, Winthrop, Nelson's brother, is deep in national politics and this has a bearing on the South. In '64, Winthrop moved to Arkansas before his divorce from his first wife, Bobo, in 1954 which cost him a $5,500,000 settlement. He became chairman of the Arkansas Industrial Commission and threw himself wholeheartedly into the effort to move the state into the industrial age. He fought Gov. Orville Faubus on integration and Rockefeller millions went into schools and clinics.

Setting out to build a Republican party in what has been a one-party state, he became GOP national committeeman. Dr. Kenneth Jones, an orthopedic surgeon, the Republican candidate who tried last fall to unseat Sen. J. William Fulbright, was regarded as Rockefeller's hand-picked choice. Rockefeller got Goldwater to come to Little Rock at the climax of the campaign, sending his private plane to Dallas to pick up the Arizona senator, chairman of the senatorial campaign committee, who called Fulbright a "retreater."

Fulbright polled 214,000 votes to just under a hundred thousand for James White. Faubus won re-election to a fifth two-year term by a larger margin. Next year could, however, be quite different. From all reports Arkansas voters are deeply disaffected over the Kennedy civil rights program. Only once since the Civil War—in 1868—has Arkansas gone Republican. But Winthrop Rockefeller might decide to run for governor himself in '64, an ambition he is said to have harbored for a long time. And he has the resources with which all members of the family are endowed to pursue his ambitions.

Disaffected Southerners would like to see Goldwater at the head of the Republican ticket, judging from samplings of sentiment. But what about a Nixon-Rockefeller ticket which would have the blessing of both Rockefeller? While this is no more than a gleam in the eye of some hopeful speculators, politics in the past has produced strange bedfellows.

The Q4

Cunard's Hope

By MAMMON from London

THE name Cunard still possesses immaculate overtones. Choosing one of the two enormous pre-war Queens for your Atlantic crossing is something like buying a magnificent vintage Bentley instead of a new Jaguar.

But cachet and cash do not always go together; Cunard's share of the depressed transatlantic passenger trade dropped and its losses mounted to $7.8 million last year, as the pride of the North Atlantic continued to look for its future.

At the annual general meeting, a noisy event that is becoming one of Liverpool's main tourist attractions, Sir John Brocklebank, the old Etonian, sociable chairman, shyly unveiled a large, $81.6 million part of that future—the Q4.

The newest Queen is more in the Jaguar style, a 58,500-ton luxury liner that can compete with the long, sleek France; she will be custom-built for the changing Atlantic trade, an up-to-date, down-to-earth, cruise-worthy replacement for the old Queen Mary.

But the Q4 isn't a new notion. Back in the fifties the idea of a smaller replacement was taken for granted by everybody—except Cunard. It came as a surprise when in 1959 Cunard (followed later by the Chandos committee and the government) plumped for the Q3, a ghost Leviathan almost as big as the Mary.

In October, 1961, just four months after the Commons had reluctantly provided $50 million in subsidy and loans towards the Q3, Cunard, beset by economic cold feet and critics, abandoned the $84 million project.

The Q4 emerged from the wreckage; the Vickers-Swan Hunter combination, led by John Hunter, a shipbuilder of unusual stamp, produced some captivating ideas about smaller, fast ships. Cunard's traditional loyalty to John Brown of Clydebank for Queen-building was shaken.

The Brocklebanks took over from the Bates dynasty. (It was Sir Percy Bates who fathered the Queens.) Sir John Brocklebank, whose family came into Cunard with its cargo line, is 67. Under his command, past heresies—investment in the air and winter cruises with the Queens—have become present policies. Sir John has axed staff, sold off properties, cut out obsolete ideas, and tried very hard.

The liner should be finished by end-1967—eight years after Cunard started chasing the Q3 mirage.

Will Q4 do the trick? In the off-cream canteen in Cunard's large, slightly shabby office, Brocklebank talked cautiously to shareholders.

For one thing, the financial deal is not sewn up. But, where Sir Percy Bates called the Queens "the inevitable ships," Brocklebank dubs the Q4 "necessary."

It is, if Cunard is to survive on an Atlantic run that looks like perking up—"the great slaters" carried 15 per cent more passengers in the first half of this year. This fact is one of Cunard's hopes.

Esquimalt Roads

$90,000 Program Near Completion

A $90,000, six-year road construction program in Esquimalt is nearing completion, municipal engineer John Graeme said yesterday.

The municipality is rebuilding 14-mile long Lyall Street, south of Esquimalt Road, as a secondary east-west route. This year's effort—$11,500 worth—has been concentrated on the last two blocks of Lyall between Sturdee and Grafton, where rock had to be blasted and drilled, storm drains installed, a gravel base laid and the surface graded.

PAVING PROGRAM

Public works construction crews are putting curbing in this two-block stretch, and the road there probably will be paved in September, said Mr. Graeme.

It is believed there will be less traffic congestion on nearby Esquimalt Road when Lyall is completed this fall.

The improved road will provide easy access between the naval dockyard area and the army Work Point area. For military personnel living in the southern part of Esquimalt it will also provide an easy route home from work.

WIDE ENOUGH

From the viewpoint of municipal officials concerned about Esquimalt's future road requirements, the 35-foot-wide road is wide enough to be used if needed as a major route parallel to Esquimalt Road.

But for the time being, officials are discouraging its use as a major thoroughway because

South Africa

Boycott Demanded

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The Soviet Union called for a total economic boycott of South Africa Tuesday and hinted the United Nations should expel that country if it refuses to give up its racist policies.

Soviet delegate Nikolai Fedorenko told the security council it should "take appropriate measures" to apply article six of the U.N. charter to South Africa unless the government of Premier Hendrik K. Verwoerd mends its ways.

Article six provides for the expulsion of a member which "persistently violates the principles" of the world body. Fedorenko stopped short of a formal call for expulsion of South Africa, however.

The Soviet delegate launched his bitter attack on the white supremacy policies of the Verwoerd government in opening the fifth day of the Security Council's debate on the subject. Earlier Ghana, Morocco and the Philippines had introduced a resolution calling for a blockade of all arms shipments to South Africa.

The Afro-Asian resolution called for a boycott of all South African goods in addition to an ending of all shipments of military material. It stopped short of a call for a complete trade embargo on South Africa, however, and did not mention the question of expulsion.

Its comparatively sober wording was a victory for moderate elements among the security council's membership, who had argued that a resolution calling for suspension or a trade boycott would be certain to fail if it came to a vote. The United States and its allies have made it clear that while they abhor the South African government's racial policies they are not prepared to vote for its expulsion or suspension from the U.N.

Conflict Plagues Africans

DAKAR, Senegal (UPI)—Free Africa's foreign ministers met in secrecy Tuesday to coordinate retaliatory measures against what they charge is Portuguese and South African "colonialism."

But internal dissensions on how to shape independent Africa's future political unity plagued the conferees who represent 32 former British, French, Italian and Belgian possessions that gained nationhood since the Second World War.

B.C. Delegates Oppose Plan

REGINA (CP)—The New Democratic Party voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to base its policy on biculturalism on constitutional guarantee of equal rights of religion, language and education in all parts of Canada.

Vigorous opposition to this proposed policy, mostly from British Columbia delegates, won support of only about a score of the delegates.

Ordeal by Hunger Soon Over

MONTREAL (CP)—After 28 days of a hunger strike to raise $100,000 to finance his separatist cause, Marcel Chaput said Tuesday he expects it will be all over by the weekend.

"We should go over the top by then," he said, as an aide reported the amount collected or pledged so far is more than $76,000.

"I've gone too far to quit now before we reach the objective," said the 45-year-old former research biochemist.

A heavy-set 245-pounder before his fast started, Mr. Chaput now looks drawn and his skin is an unhealthy-looking yellow. His eyes are bloodshot under droopy lids.

His movements are slow as he sits stooped behind a desk in a small office at headquarters of his Republican party where he has been living since his hunger strike began Monday, July 8.

His weight now is down to 210, a loss of 35 pounds. Formerly a chain-smoker, he has given up cigarettes.

For the first three days of his fast, he ate two slices of bread daily but he gave them up because, he said, it made the hunger strike tougher. He then lived only on water until a few days ago when doctors ordered him to take a glass of orange juice daily because tests showed a dangerous shortage of potassium.

"Even Gandhi drank orange juice when he fasted," Mr. Chaput said, referring to the late Indian leader whose policy of passive resistance led his country to independence from Britain.

What are the doctors saying about his fast?

"I don't care. Everybody wants me to go to hospital when it will be over, but I will not. I'll go home."

"Next to craving food, the hardest thing is staying cooped up here."

Hired guards from a detective agency are with him all the time to "make sure he doesn't break his fast," an aide said.

Since his hunger strike started, Mr. Chaput has left the office only twice—to attend Sunday mass. His wife visits him every evening with their children.

Catching a salmon can be a thrilling experience to a native British Columbian but to many a native Briton it is the dream of a lifetime.

"It's a rich man's sport in England," said Ernest Emerson, 71, of Ipswich, Suffolk, who, with his wife Emily is on a visit to his brother and sister-in-law, the Sydney Emersons of 1033 Meares.

"Since coming to Victoria I've achieved that dream," he said. "As a matter of fact I've caught six salmon since I've been here. The largest was a 9-pound, 12-ounce spring about a mile out of West Bay."

The Ipswich Emersons came to Canada in June for the marriage of their son, Derek, a technical engineer in Montreal. After the wedding they headed for Victoria.

He spent all his working years with the East Anglian Daily Times with the exception of 10 years on the Sunderland Echo. Brother Sydney started his working career as a telegraph boy on the Times.

Father of the two men was a sergeant in the Ipswich police force. Sydney served with the RCMP for 25 years after returning from the First World War. His son, Sydney, Jr., is with the RCMP in Toronto.

Stamps Earn Revenge Against Blue Bombers

CALGARY — Calgary Stampeders, robbed of a Grey Cup berth by Winnipeg Blue Bombers last time the clubs met, got another shot at them here last night and mauled the Canadian Football League champions, 36-27, in the season opener for both clubs.

Led by a savage defensive club that held Bombers to a net total of four yards rushing, Stampeders had a 16-0 lead before the game was 20 minutes old. As it turned out, they needed it. Bombers pulled to within a single point, 22-21, going into the final quarter and with five minutes remaining had the ball with a chance to go ahead with a converted touchdown.

But that Calgary defensive wall, which stopped Bombers on three tries from inside the five-yard line earlier in the game, came through again to hold one last time, and Larry Robinson put them out of reach with a 25-yard field goal, his second of the quarter, with 19 seconds left. It was an especially sweet victory for Stampeders, and for the 18,000 home fans who jammed

McMahon Stadium to watch the clubs in the first meeting since last year's Western Conference final—a final the Stamps could have won.

Bombers "stole" that one as Farrell Funtston fell on a loose ball in the Calgary end zone on a play that was completed after the final gun had sounded and it was Bombers, not Stampeders, who went on to the Grey Cup final. But there was no stealing this one from the Stamps.

Five Years on Bench

Lions Release Earl Keeley

VANCOUVER (CP)—Earl Keeley, a Canadian quarter-back who rode the British Columbia Lions bench for five years, has been chipped by the Western Football Conference club.

He was released with Canadian guard Tom Walker and another player as Lions met the 34-man roster rule set for the opening of the WFC schedule. Lions play Saskatchewan in Regina tomorrow.

Keeley, 26, is a graduate of Montana University. He apparently became expendable this year with the appearance of Pete Olier, a hometown boy with a top college background at the University of Washington.

Halfback George Brancato, a veteran import cut this year by Ottawa Rough Riders and picked up by Lions, also was released.

Others cut: Sophomore tackle Willie Taylor of Florida A and M by way of Hamilton Tiger-Cats; rookie tackles Ray Osbourne and Bobby Garvin of Mississippi State; rookie end John Hudson of the University of Tennessee.

Lions also announced that import halfback Tom Larseheid from Utah State and Canadian end Jim Carphin will go on the injured reserve list. Larseheid is recovering from a knee injury and Carphin is skipping a year of football after an attack of hepatitis.

Imports remaining with the Lions in addition to Larseheid are quarterbacks Joe Kapp and Mel Melin, halfbacks Willie Fleming, Norris Stevenson, Bill Munsey, Mack Burton and Steve Shafer, fullback Nub Beamer, defensive ends Dick Fouts and Mike Martin, tackles Lonnie Dennis and Bill Frank, guard Tom Hinton and line-backers Tom Brown, Gary Schwertfeger and Don Vico.

Liston vs. Clay Not This Year

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Heavyweight champion Sonny Liston Tuesday postponed until "sometime next year" his proposed September Philadelphia title defense against young Cassius Clay because of tax problems but said he would consider a December defense on home television against some other challenger.

To open discussions about the December defense, probably against Chicago giant Ernie Terrell, Liston said he would go to New York today to talk with promoter Harry Markson of Madison Square Garden and Teddy Brenner.

CLAY DISAPPOINTED

In New York, Clay said he was "gravely disappointed" that he won't be the youngest heavyweight champion in history, because that big, ugly bear is afraid of me.

"Only a few months stand between me becoming the youngest champion in history," said Clay, in between sessions of cutting a record.

NO FLOYD

"He's scared to death of me," said the 21-year-old Clay. "I'm no (Floyd) Patterson. He's afraid of this little old kid beating him. A little kid, who doesn't even shave yet."

"Everybody says Liston is so bad and so mean," Clay scoffed. "They say he'll kill me. Well, if he's so bad, why doesn't he fight me? It isn't because of tax problems that he doesn't want to fight. He's just scared. I got tax problems, too."

HOME TV

Markson explained that he and Brenner will be glad to "sit down socially" with big Sonny and discuss possibilities of a home-television defense. But he stressed:

"The Garden has promoted a heavyweight title fight since Archie Moore at Chicago in 1936. The federal court ruling limited Garden title promotions for five years of that interim."

But at New York, Markson said: "The Garden is ready now to return to big-time heavyweight championship promotion."

In Carling Series

U.S. Golfers Win Again

TOLEDO, Ohio (CP)—For the fifth year in a row, Canada's eight-man golf team lost out to the United States Tuesday, 7½ points to 4½, in the annual professional-amateur matches between the two countries.

The best-ball matches for the Carling Cup have been going on since 1957 and Canada has won only twice—the first two years.

Prior to this year, the more experienced U.S. players needed extra holes to gain three of their four yearly victories. But this time they wrapped things up in the regulation 18 holes.

Each team is composed of four pros and four amateurs. A pro and an amateur from Canada are paired off against a similar U.S. combination in the match play under the Nassau system, with a total of three points at stake in each foursome.

stop the powerful and well-balanced Vancouver club from posting its second straight league championship. Sparked by Wayne Pecknold, who finished with four goals, Vancouver took a 6-2 lead in the first quarter and was never headed.

Shamrocks and Nanaimo play tonight and Saturday, Vancouver and New Westminster meet again tomorrow, and New Westminster closes out the league schedule Monday in Victoria against Shamrocks, the team it will meet in the semi-final, winner to meet Vancouver.

Despite the loss the game was almost a personal triumph for Bionda, who has won the scoring championship every year he has been able to play a full season—in 1954-57, 58-59-60. For the past two seasons he played only 12 of his club's 30 games but still finished high up in the scoring.

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

An important move in the fight to keep B.C. private golf clubs from being forced out of existence by excessive taxation has been taken by Vancouver city council.

Council endorsed a resolution by its civic government committee that the question of amending the golf clubs should be considered at the next meeting of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, Sept. 11-13, in Dawson Creek.

The city proposes that the provincial government should give consideration to providing a more equitable form of tax assessment for golf courses as long as they continue operation as such. Last year Vancouver clubs had their assessments raised to a point where some were paying double what they had paid in previous years.

An appeal against these assessments was upheld by the Vancouver Court of Revision, but reversed later by the Provincial Court of Appeal, which found that local courts had no powers to make alterations not provided for under the Vancouver city charter of the B.C. Municipalities Act.

B.C. Golf Association, which hopes to present a brief to the cabinet in the future dealing with the problems of clubs under the present act, is hoping that every municipality will give favorable consideration to the resolution being brought before the UBCM convention by the City of Vancouver.

Whether Bob Charles had anything to do with it or not, the fact remains that local left-handers have been hitting the high spots since the New Zealander became the first left-hander to win the British Open Championship.

Latest left-handed champion in this area is Dave Naysmith, who carried off the Esquimalt Amateur championship Sunday at Gorge Vale.

Dave, whose wife, Shirley, is one of British Columbia's top lady golfers, was around in 75 for a net 69, five under par. It gave the Gorge left-hander a two-stroke margin over Bill Hobbs (77-74-71) and John Carlow (78-71-71).

Gross prize went to Dave Ewart of Gorge Vale with a par 74, runners-up were two of Victoria's better juniors, Ricky Kent of Colwood and Noel Pumphrey of Gorge Vale, each with 77.

And now the local left-handers are going to organize.

Between 35 and 40 left-handers attended an initial meeting to form a Vancouver Island division of the Left-handers Golf Association, including eight from Mt. Brenton.

Officers will be elected at the next meeting, Aug. 13, at 8:30 p.m. in Harmony Hall, Town and Country Shopping Centre.

Seven golfers from Bermuda will provide an unusual touch to the Canadian Amateur championship at Riverside Golf and Country Club, Aug. 12-17, in Saint John, New Brunswick.

Also in an entry of 129 are 97 from across Canada and 25 from the United States.

Included in the U.S. entry is Tom Draper, the Michigan golfer who was defeated in last year's final at London by Reg Taylor of South Africa.

Three former champions in the field are Nick Westlock and Gary Cowan, both members of the Ontario Willingdon Cup team, and Keith Alexander, who will lead the Alberta provincial side. John Johnstone of Vancouver, the 1959 winner at Marine Drive and the only B.C. winner since Walt McElroy won in 1951, is not an entrant on this occasion.

The Willingdon Cup and the qualifying round for 64 places in the amateur championship will be held Aug. 12 and 13, with 18 holes being played on each day.

The B.C. team, with Moe Young of Kelowna, a well-known former hockey player, as non-playing captain, consists of Bill Wakeham, Victoria, Doug Reid, Bert Ticehurst and Don Gardner, all of Vancouver. Reid and Gardner are newcomers to the B.C. side.

Point Grey scored a narrow over-all win in the first of the new series of home and home inter-club matches with Victoria at the weekend. Point Grey's six-point advantage in the first half was maintained throughout the second half.

B.C. junior team for the Interprovincial matches to be played at Royal Colwood in conjunction with this month's Canadian junior championship will be selected Friday at a meeting of the B.C. Golf Association in Vancouver.

CONNAUGHT RANGES, Ont. (CP)—Perfect scores were fired in all four matches run off Tuesday at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association's annual matches.

Veteran observers immediately predicted that the competition among the more than 600 riflemen here for places on Canada's 1964 Biske team will be the tightest in years.

Sgt. Ralph Cathline of the Royal Canadian School of Infantry, Camp Borden, Ont., began the trend towards perfection in the Macdougall match by hitting the bulls-eye 10 times from 200 yards and repeating the feat from 500 yards.

Maj. Edson Warner of Lennoxville, Que., won the President's match by hitting the bulls-eye with all 10 of his rounds from the 600-yard range.

LAC A. J. (Jim) Hennok, a member of the 1963 RCAF team, and S. Sgt. Cliff Wilshire of Ottawa both fired possible 100s in the Bankers match.

To Gold River

Road Open Part Time

By ALEC MERRIMAN

The Tahsis Co. has arranged its bridge construction program so that the Gold River road will be closed in mid-week periods and open at weekends for tyoe fishermen and other users, general logging manager Don McCall told the Colonist last night.

The road will be open to the public from 6 p.m. to 8 a.m. Thursday and Friday of this week and all day and all night on Saturday and Sunday.

It will be closed completely Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Aug. 12, 13 and 14, and open from 6 p.m. to 8 a.m. Thursday and Friday, Aug. 15 and 16 and all day and night Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 17 and 18.

CLOSED DATES

The road will be closed Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Aug. 19, 20, 21, 22.

It will be open for public travel Friday, Aug. 23, at 6 p.m. and all day Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 24 and 25.

Mr. McCall said notices will be posted at the start of the road telling when the road is closed, so that travellers will not drive to the start of the Tahsis section only to find it closed.

The road is being closed at the stated times so that the Tahsis Company can repair its bridge across the Gold River while its logging crews are on annual vacation.

GOOD NEWS

The announcement was greeted as good news by tyoe fishermen who had been doubtful about which days the road would be open. Tyoe season on Gold River has started with a few big ones already and there is also a good run of jack springs right now.

Garden Notes

Leaf Curl Diagnosed

By M. V. CROOK, F.R.S.

The other day I went over to Ernie's place to pick up my seedling fork, which he had borrowed some weeks earlier. Ernie never returns anything — you have to go and fetch it back. I found the old boy in a nasty temper, really blowing his top and vowing horrible vengeance on his next door neighbors.

The trouble was his tomato plants, which were looking very sorry for themselves, and Ernie was convinced the cause was 2, 4-D fumes drifting in from a careless weeding job.

I had a close look at the plants, and while superficially the symptoms had some resemblance to 2, 4-D poisoning, other signs were present that pointed unmistakably to magnesium deficiency as the source of the trouble.

True, the margins of the leaves were curling upward, and this is one earliest sign of weevil damage, but a shortage of magnesium in the plant's diet will also cause this upward curling.

In addition to this symptom, the lower leaves were showing a distinct yellowing between the veins — a condition known as chlorosis. The veins themselves were green enough, and in some cases the margins as well, but the portions of the leaf between the veins were losing their green color.

In the oldest leaves, low down on the plant, patches of grey and brown dead areas had developed, and a few of the leaves had withered entirely. It is significant that the oldest leaves had gone first, for other diet deficiencies can cause chlorosis, but the one sure sign of a magnesium hunger is that the symptoms show up first in the most elderly foliage.

Magnesium is a major element of plant nutrition, and is essential because it is an important ingredient in chlorophyll, the green coloring in the leaves. A shortage of this element is fairly common, especially on light sandy or gravelly ground, as our heavy winter rainfall tends to leach this mineral out of the soil.

Even in soil adequately supplied with magnesium, I have run across cases where the deficiency had been created artificially by using too much potash fertilizer. In much the same way as too much lime can cause iron hunger in plants.

Magnesium shortage is not as common where manure is used freely, for animals consume a lot of green foliage, rich in magnesium, and some of this is excreted in the dung. Besides, a heavily manured plot is less subject to leaching in the rain because the sponge-like fibre in the soil tends to retain nutrients.

Fortunately, it isn't too hard to treat a magnesium deficiency once the trouble is diagnosed, and in Ernie's case we started by giving each of his sick plants a good dose of Epsom salts, which is a cheap and readily available source of magnesium. We used two tablespoonfuls of salts per gallon of water and gave each plant a quart of the solution, poured very slowly over the rooting area.

This would do the trick in time, as the magnesium was taken up into the plant's tissues, but I felt that in this case we should try to get some quicker action. The plants were carrying quite a crop of tomatoes, and to save these, some emergency first-aid treatment was indicated. This was done by spraying the leaves daily with the same Epsom salts solution but at half strength, one tablespoonful per gallon. The plants appear to be making a good recovery.

The Extraordinary Stephen Ward

Casanova with a Complex

LONDON — What was the real motivation behind the extraordinary career of Stephen Ward?

From the evidence, and from the accounts of people who knew him, some clues can be pieced together about this odd and muddled man.

He was, from his youth, impelled by a restless, defiant daring. He was brought up in Torquay, Devon, where his father—who took a first at Balliol — was the vicar of a fashionable parish.

Ward's father was a gentle, scholarly man who was very popular with his staid parishioners, and his mother was a formidable and sociable person, known as "Ma Ward" and treated by neighbors with deference and caution.

Young Ward was clearly, from the first, driven to revolt against his paragon parents. He did not believe in God—a fact that then worried him a good deal — and he was inherently unstable.

At the same time, he had extraordinary charm and social dexterity. When he was about 18, for instance, he went with a friend on holiday to France, and picked up a young French girl, whom he then took back to Torquay and hid in the basement of Ma Ward's house for three weeks, until she was discovered.

This kind of prank gave him great excitement and continued to do so, with diminishing returns, for the following 30 years.

His frenetic interest in girls continued unabated; but his pursuit of them was so rest- less, so open and showing-off, that his Casanova activities concealed latent homosexuality or impotence.

He had occasional apparently serious affairs, but they always petered out; and when, at the age of 36, he got married, the marriage collapsed after a few weeks.

Little privacy about his life: he was a compulsive exhibitionist who depended on audiences to provide him with stimulus and confidence.

As an osteopath, he had talents. He was a massive, well-built man, with a sleek, illustrative, and loved showing off right up till the end.

He liked to exercise his power over girls, and it may have been this, as much as sexual desire, that impelled him. He had strong, seductive eyes and a soft, cultured voice. He was amusing and good company. He was capable of great kindnesses. He knew how to reassure insecure girls, and how to give them confidence in public.

With these skills he could, as he did with Christine Keeler, build up pygmalion girls, whom he would enjoy showing off to his friends.

Part of his motive, no doubt, was the sheer enjoyment of the social game; part of it may have been not much more than the desire of an over-bearing father to dominate a daughter. But part of it may have come from an obsessive sense of inadequacy, both sexual and otherwise.

In spite of the evident asexual nature of his life, he seemed satisfied with his general usefulness and importance.

He fancied himself as an amateur psychiatrist who understood the failings of others and helped to put them on their feet. He saw himself also as bringing the classes together, easing the wheels of society, introducing poor girls to rich men.

It seems never to have occurred to him that other people might see him differently, as the jury at his trial came to do.

He was not an avaricious man, and he clearly wanted social acceptance, sociability, glamour, and the great world much more than money. It was this which made much of the prosecution's case seem inherently implausible.

To depict him as a straightforward pimp, using his apartment as a commercial brothel, seemed out of keeping with Ward's basic ambitions and the peculiar nature of his self-respect.

His political attitudes remain very puzzling. He was certainly "pinkish," much admired — and loved talking about the evils of capitalism.

But he appeared to have a very romantic self-dramatizing approach, as he showed in the extraordinary attempts to act as an intermediary in the Cuba crisis. His friendship with Ivanov was certainly close; they spent weekends together at his cottage, and Ivanov used to dig for hours in a rocky known as "the Russian Steppes."

But on the evidence so far (and Lord Denning may produce more) the friendship does not seem to have had very serious political implications: it seems to have revolved around bridge and girls as much as communism.

Ward, in his fashion, seems to have taken himself, both in his social and political roles, quite seriously. At the trial, he seemed quite composed and cheerful, sketching, joking and attending his exhibition of drawings. The impression was created that he was shameless.

But he must have been aware that the evidence, whether believed or not, was undermining his self-justification. Even if he had won the case he could never again have enjoyed the social position which sustained him: that back door had been slammed.

It may well have been that realization which led him to suicide: he saw what the unbalanced poet John Clare called "the massive shipwreck of my self-esteem."

"She is coming back," Pierre assured me, admitting, "We have had some trouble, but who hasn't?"

Hundreds Gather Restaurant Scene Of Song Duel

NEW YORK (AP) — A Baptist minister and 24 followers began singing hymns outside a supper club in the heart of the theatre district Tuesday night.

They said they were protesting the club's "prostituting of religious songs and symbols of the church." Twenty-two waitresses and entertainers gathered on the sidewalk in a counter-demonstration.

The waitresses had signs that said: "We practice integration — your picketing is discrimination in reverse." A spokesman for the club said many so-called spirituals were written by jazz composers. The demonstrations lasted about 2½ hours.

Reds Vs. Reds

Ideological Bomb Hits Hiroshima

HIROSHIMA (AP)—The Soviet Union charged Communist China with wanting to spread nuclear poison in the air and China hit back by accusing the Russians of selling out and surrendering to the United States.

The angry exchange came at the now-splintered ban-the-bomb conference between the chief delegates of the two Communist giants. It contrasted sharply to solemn ceremonies marking the 18th anniversary of the dropping of the first atomic bomb on this Japanese city.

Survivors of the A-bomb said they took hope from the signing in Moscow Monday of a partial nuclear test-ban treaty — the same treaty the Chinese and Soviet delegates fought so bitterly about at the conference.

DRESSED IN BLACK
"It is true that the past still leaves some fundamental problems unsettled," said Hiroshima Mayor Shinzo Hamai, dressed in mourning black, as peace doves flew overhead.

"Nevertheless, we attach great significance to it as a fulfilment of our earnest wish that a step forward be taken toward an ultimate realization of a total ban."

STAND SILENT
The Hiroshima peace bell tolled and a crowd of 15,000 stood silent in homage to the first victims of an atomic bomb. It was exactly 8:15 a.m. — the time to the minute when the U.S. B-29 Enola Gay dropped the bomb on Aug. 6, 1945.

At the conference, Yuri Zhukov, Soviet chief commentator for the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda, said Chinese opposition to the treaty meant Peking favored continued pollution of the atmosphere by nuclear tests.

SURRENDER
Angry Chinese delegate Chu Tzu-chi reported that the Soviet Union was guilty of "selling out and surrendering to the United States" over Cuba and giving aid to India to help it invade China.

As a scornful afterthought, he added Soviet Premier Khrushchev "had courage, all right — the courage to embrace the American delegate to the test-ban conference" — State Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman.

RUSSIAN GLOWERS
Chu, a neat young man, brandished a Chinese fan with elegant elegance to accent his points.

Zhukov, glowering, said Russia had saved China from the United States in the 1958 battle of the Formosa Strait and had rescued Cuba from American invasion last year. He said this in replying to Chu's earlier charge that the nuclear test-ban treaty prevents China from getting nuclear capability and thus weakens the Communist bloc. He said it was not enough to use words, as China did, but to have the courage for action as well.

It was extraordinary, he added, that China sided with French President de Gaulle in opposing the nuclear test-ban treaty.

All this was too much for Chu. Rising in his seat and urged on by his fellow delegates, he took the floor to reply, saying it was an insult to assert the Russian nuclear power had helped achieve the Chinese revolution.

COURAGE TO SELL OUT
Referring to the Korean War, Chu asked:

"When have you had a courage to fight the imperialists like that?"

"You have the courage to sell out and surrender to the U.S. over Cuba," he added. "You have the courage to help a reactionary power (India) to invade our frontier. You should feel ashamed to say you use nuclear arms to protect China."

MONDAY WALKOUT
The conference came under Communist domination Monday when the Japanese socialists and Sohyo Labor Federation walked out in disgust over the Japanese Communist party's insistence that it refuse to condemn testing by Communist powers.

At the conference, Yuri Zhukov, Soviet chief commentator for the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda, said Chinese opposition to the treaty meant Peking favored continued pollution of the atmosphere by nuclear tests.

Survivors of the A-bomb said they took hope from the signing in Moscow Monday of a partial nuclear test-ban treaty — the same treaty the Chinese and Soviet delegates fought so bitterly about at the conference.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoid case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months. This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator). Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded.

Saanich Planners Urge Light Industrial Section

Saanich's on-again off-again light industrial zone — east of Douglas Street between two shopping centres — is on again. Lands and planning committee last night recommended that council rezone the area around Cloverdale near Douglas for light industrial purposes.

The municipality has had a light industrial zone — for such things as warehouses and trucking centres — west of Douglas Street for several years but the area is so run down that nobody wants to locate there.

Municipal planner Antony Parr, who recommended the site east of Douglas to the committee, said he would like to see an area where business interests can locate on short notice without having to wait for public hearing, rezoning and bylaw preparation procedures which take up to two months' time.

OPPOSES SCHEME

Of the three councillors present at the committee meeting, Coun. Leslie Passmore—opposed to the scheme—assumed chairmanship of the meeting temporarily while Coun. Robert Ostler, the chairman, and Coun. Hugh Curtis voted it through to council.

The recommendation is expected to meet stiffer resistance when it reaches council level because Coun. Joseph Casey is strongly opposed to having the area zoned light industrial instead of commercial.

"The area west of Douglas has a less desirable environment and this puts them (business firms) off time and time again. There is a higher standard on the east and a greater desire of people to go there," said Mr. Parr.

Shelbourne

Saanich Weighs Apartment Zone

Saanich is considering creation of a 10 or 12-block apartment area along Shelbourne Street for accommodation of university people.

Lands and planning committee last night endorsed a recommendation of municipal planner Antony Parr that a study be completed of the general Shelbourne area between Broadmead and Mortimer, for this purpose.

Final decision on the study will be up to council.

"Research carried out in conjunction with the university area study shows that within that part of the municipality lying to the east of Blenkinsop Road there will be an ultimate demand for approximately 1,700 suites to cater to the additional population which can be housed in this area," Mr. Parr said in a report.

The area where he conducted a preliminary study has "a minimum amount of new single family dwellings and a high proportion of vacant land. It lies in the Shelbourne valley and does not encroach on surrounding single family dwelling areas," he said.

Mr. Parr asked for committee backing and council approval to continue his study "in order to establish a suitable density and height regulation for the area."

Sign Law Modified In Saanich

Saanich sign bylaw committee made one minor concession last night in its second meeting with sign manufacturing company representatives — that free standing signs can be 30 feet high instead of 20 feet.

Committee, which will include this change in its modified sign bylaw to be presented to council, dug its heels in against a proposal by the businessmen that the present sign ratio of two square feet per one foot of building frontage for signs attached to buildings be changed to two square feet per every foot of property frontage.

Coun. Leslie Passmore, chairman of the sign bylaw committee, told the sign company delegates that the committee will also recommend to council that existing non-conforming signs be allowed to remain.

First Landings Here

Fishermen Making Hay Following Long Tieup

First shipments of salmon started rolling into Victoria yesterday as trollers were able to sell their catches after B.C.'s crippling three-week fishing strike ended Sunday.

Meanwhile, up to 300 gillnetters and 100 seiners were reporting good catches on their short-wave radio sets as the fishing fleet took position at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait for the big net salmon kill.

$10,000,000 LOSS

But this picture of happy activity after the strike was marred by the realization by B.C.'s 6,000 salmon net fishermen that they lost about $10,000,000 worth of catches in sockeye off Fraser River delta.

"This is only the tail end of the sockeye run," Kenneth Campbell, secretary-manager of the Fisheries Association of B.C. told the Colonist last night.

UP FRASER RIVER

"The bulk of the huge Chilko run has gone up the Fraser River, a loss of up to $10,000,000."

The 400 fishing boats in the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait however were just in time Sunday to start fishing as the strike ended simultaneously with the official Aug. 4 opening of net fishing in those waters.

BULK IN THURSDAY

In Victoria, packing companies handled several shipments of troll-caught salmon early this week, but spokesmen said they didn't expect bulk shipments until Thursday.

Port Renfrew, home port of seiners and gillnetters, has become a fish boom town overnight with about 1,200 to 1,300 fishermen and shoreworkers settling up shop in the little community with a normal population of 300 to 350 persons.

LIKE BIG CITY

"There is a lot of action here now," said one bewildered Port Renfrew resident. "It looks like a big city."

Fishermen are interested in catching as many fish in as short a time as possible after their three-week tieup.

"The seiners and gillnetters are running back and forth all the time," another Port Renfrew resident said.

FISH BUYERS ARRIVE

About six bigtime fish buyers have invaded Port Renfrew and are competing against traditionally slightly higher prices offered fishermen by independent cash buyers.

While the dickering is going on, floating packer-workers are busy unloading gillnetters—who fish by night—and seiners—who fish by day—in a round-the-clock effort to supply Vancouver and mainland canneries with salmon.

TRANSFER BOATS

In order to do so, about 20 "transfer" boats shuttle between Port Renfrew and the mainland.

"Evening is the best time to watch," said a Port Renfrew resident. "The seiners are coming in around 5 p.m. while the gillnetters are preparing to go out for the night."

Current prices paid to fishermen by regular buyers is 34 cents a pound for sockeye "in the round," said Mr. Campbell. In the round means fish as it comes out of the water—with heads, tails and guts.

Tossing 10,000 pounds of salmon from independent fish buyer's truck into receptacles at Oakland Industries Ltd., cannery on Wharf Street yesterday are Gordie Davies, left, and Henry Longos, 35. Troll-caught salmon was among first to be unloaded after three-week fishing strike ended Saturday.—(Bud Kinsman)

Will Take Year

$70,000 Traffic Survey May Solve Problems

The Capital Region Planning Board will order a $70,000 traffic movement survey which may lead to solution of many of Greater Victoria's present and future traffic and planning problems.

The board decided yesterday to sign an agreement with Traffic Research Corporation, a Toronto firm which will subcontract part of the survey work to N. D. Lee and Associates of Vancouver.

Reeve George Murdoch, CRPB chairman, said the agreement will be signed as soon as it is drawn up, possibly this week.

PAY HALF

The provincial highways department has agreed to pay half the cost of the survey, which will take nearly a year to complete. Victoria and the three adjacent municipalities will pay the other half on a cost-sharing basis.

The survey will delve into minute details of the complex movement of traffic throughout Greater Victoria today and as it might be up to 30 years from now.

It will produce recommendations for streamlining the flow of traffic. These recommendations will be non-binding on the part of councils concerned but will be of assistance to planners in connection with zoning and land use.

City and municipal engineers will be asked to contribute information and data for the survey, and Capital Region Planning Board material will also be used.

Reeve Murdoch stressed the need for starting the survey as soon as possible, to speed up the process of getting the vital findings back in the hands of the officials here who have to make decisions about future road changes.

India and Italy will be featured in documentaries shown in Benson Mill Park this evening as part of the Victoria International Film Festival.

The program, to be shown in the Cameron hand shell, beginning at 8 p.m. will include This Is Our India, Himalachal, Capital Story, Invitation to India and Borgo a Mozzano.

Rear-End Crash Injures One

A rear-end crash at Richmond and Cochrane sent Josias Dunn, 1887 Cochrane, to Royal Jubilee Hospital yesterday.

Police said Mr. Dunn apparently applied his brakes to avoid children who were playing on the corner.

He was released from hospital after treatment. Police said the other car was driven by Loretta M. Davis, 834 Esquimalt Road.

Fishing Gear Stolen

Nearly $400 in fishing equipment was reported stolen from two boats at the Anchorage Boatouse, Brentwood Bay, over the weekend. Central Saanich police reported last night.

Stolen were four fishing rods and reels, one separate reel, a fishing box, assorted tools and numerous lures and other pieces of fishing gear.

Long, Hard Road Ahead for Gordon

By MIKE GADSBY
The road back for Gordon Rasmussen will be a long one. But after lying unconscious for nearly two months—much of the time near death—the 10-year-old Nanaimo boy has started along the long road to recovery from the severe brain damage which threatened his life.

Gordon was riding his bicycle near his home at Nanaimo on May 12—Mother's Day—when he struck the concrete abutment of a airport and was thrown head-first to the concrete floor.

He was rushed unconscious to St. Joseph's Hospital in Victoria where he was examined by a neurosurgeon who discovered contusions, or "bruises", to the boy's brain in an exploratory operation.

Gordon was immediately given hypothermia treatment to prevent the brain damage from becoming worse while giving it a chance to heal.

"The treatment is similar to putting the patient in a state of hibernation at the lowered temperature—in Gordon's case, 80 degrees Fahrenheit.

He spent three weeks in this condition.

His doctor explained that brain contusions usually cause permanent mental deterioration, which, it was feared for a long time, would be Gordon's fate.

His doctor said there was one period of about a week when Gordon was not expect-ted to live, but once he got through that his condition began to improve steadily.

His father, James, who works at the Harmac pulp mill near Nanaimo, used to visit Gordon nearly every day. Neither of his parents ever gave up hope that he would live.

Once he was out of danger and had regained consciousness, the long process of physical and occupational therapy began in an effort to bring him back to a condition of useful existence.

He was moved to the Queen Alexandra Solarium two weeks ago so this treatment could be carried out more intensively, and thoughts on his chances of recovery have now changed from pessimism to optimism, according to his doctor.

His parents now visit him only on weekends, according to Solarium rules, and are still optimistic about his future.

His doctor, who does not wish his name mentioned because of medical ethics, says Gordon's improvement over the past two or three weeks has been encouraging, and he hopes to keep him in the Solarium until the new year.

"He will show most improvement in the first year following the accident," the doctor said. "From then on he should improve more along with his natural mental growth."

Whether or not his recovery will be complete enough to allow him to lead a completely normal life is still not known, he said, although his chances are now good.

"That is a question that only time will tell."

The windup of Saanich's summer playgrounds program will take place tonight in Hampton Park off Tillicum Road.

Reeve Stanley Murphy and some council members will be on hand for presentation of eight prizes for a fancy dress parade at 7 p.m. by youngsters from all 18 of Saanich's supervised playgrounds.

The fancy dress parade will be followed by a boys' softball final in which the best team from the eastern part of the municipality will play the best team from the western part. It was not known yesterday which teams will play in the final.

After the game, trophies will be presented to the girls' softball finalists (playoff in Hampton Park at 3 p.m. today), to the eastern boys finalist team, the western boys finalist team and to the winning team of the evening's final.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Swan To Reside in Saanichton

Miss Ruby Winnifred Roberta Mycock and Mr. Donald Malcolm Swan exchanged nuptial vows and rings before the Rev. T. H. McAllister in Gorge Presbyterian Church last Friday evening.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mycock, 4771 Elk Road, was given in marriage by her father. A classic, floor-length gown of nylon organdy over taffeta was worn by the bride. It was styled with fitted bodice and sweetheart neckline of French lace, highlighted with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The sleeves ended in silk points and the full, flowing skirt swept into a train.

Her veil of silk illusion misted from a dainty headpiece of orange blossoms and she carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and white carnations. For "something old" she had her great grandmother's ruby and pearl engagement ring.

Miss Sylvia Bull was bridesmaid for her cousin. She wore a pale pink dress of nylon organdy over taffeta, a pink rose headpiece and carried a fan bouquet of deep pink carnations.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Swan, Saanichton, had Mr. Dave Allen as best man. Mr. Dave Mycock, brother of the bride, and Mr. Oswald Kockett, showed guests to the pews. A reception followed in the Royal Oak Women's Institute hall where Mr. Albert Slater proposed the toast to the bride. On their return from a honeymoon in the United States, Alberta and British Columbia the young couple will live in Saanichton.

The bride's going away costume was a light blue three-piece linen suit, white accessories and pink carnations corsage.

Mrs. Lily Bell, 637 Dunedin Street, announces the engagement of her daughter, Linda Jane, to Mr. William Jackie Budynski, son of Mr. Joseph Budynski, Victoria and Mrs. Evelyn Budynski of Edmonton. The marriage will take place Aug. 30 at 8 p.m. in Centennial United Church, with Rev. S. J. Parsons officiating. — (Norman Tovey)

Red Roses In Bouquet

Louise Anne Wostrowski, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wostrowski, of Rutland, B.C. and Const. Gilbert Fraser Yard, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Yard of Trail, B.C., former residents of Victoria for many years, were united in marriage recently at St. Theresa's Church, Rutland.

The bride chose a lovely gown of Chantilly lace, featuring three scalloped tiers posed over hoops, scalloped neckline outlined with sequins and lily-point sleeves. Her chapel-length veil fell from a lace coronet and she carried a cascade of scarlet Bacarra roses which toned with the RCMP uniforms worn by the groom and his attendants.

The bride's jewelry was a pair of pearl drop earrings, the gift of the groom. Father F. L. Flynn officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Miss Loretta Manarin of Calgary was maid of honor, Miss Terri Wiley, the groom's cousin from Victoria, bridesmaid and Miss Donna Wostrowski and Miss Linda Yard, sisters of the principals, were junior bridesmaids. They were dressed alike in simply-styled white frocks and wore white floral whistles. They carried bouquets of red roses set in white gladioli.

Flower girl, Sharon Eden, of Victoria, was dressed in a white satin skirt with scarlet lace bodice. Ring bearer, Ricky Holtzki of Prince George wore a miniature replica of the RCMP uniform.

Luncheon was served to the bridal party and families at Tilling's, Kelowna. A supper and dance were held later in the Legion Hall, where the bride's table was centred with a cake made by her mother. Mr. C. A. Bruce proposed the toast.

For the honeymoon the bride changed to a shell pink linen suit with black and white accessories. The newlyweds will make their home at Fort MacLeod where the groom is stationed.

Among out-of-town guests were the following from Victoria, Mrs. Alice Yard, Mr. and Mrs. E. Wiley, Terri and Claire, Mr. and Mrs. D. Eden and family, Mr. and Mrs. F. Fraser and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. Fraser and Mrs. J. Carroll.

Lace Butterfly Applique Matches Heirloom Brooch

An heirloom butterfly brooch of rubies and diamonds belonging to her great grandmother, was chosen by Constance Louise Cartwright to wear with her bridal gown of nylon which was accented with lace butterfly appliques.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Cartwright, Irma Street. She was united in marriage with Mr. Theodore Joseph Chayekski, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Chayekski, McClure Street, by Rev. Canon Robert Willis in St. Mark's Anglican Church.

White carnations and gladioli decorated the church for the double ring ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose a floor-length gown styled with scooped neckline and full sweeping skirt.

Her coronet of sparkling crystal and pearls entwined with orange blossoms held a pouffy chapel-length nylon veil. She carried a bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

Maid of honor, Miss Betty Cartwright and bridesmaids, Miss Joan Marsh and Miss Jennifer McKay were gowned alike in rich apricot frosted nylon over taffeta. Dresses were styled with belted skirts, and they wore matching headpieces. Toning carnations formed their bouquets.

Also nieces of the bride, little Catherine and Rosemary Cartwright were flower girls in pale yellow nylon frocks. They carried nosegays of carnations and yellow rosebuds.

Mr. Harvey Chayekski was best man for his brother and Mr. Edward Reitz, and the bride's brothers, Kenneth and Douglas Cartwright ushered guests.

The Cavalier Room of the Colony Motel was decorated with white, peach and pink gladioli for the reception. The bride's table was centred with a four-tiered cake, baked by her mother. It was topped with wedding bells and encircled with lily-of-the-valley and misty tulle.

Mr. Frank Pitta proposed the toast. A buffet supper prepared by Harvey Chayekski and Earl Joy followed at the groom's home.

The bride's going away outfit was an imported wool suit of pale gold with brilliant daffodil yellow side-swept straw hat. White accessories and corsage of cream roses completed her ensemble. The couple will make their home in Nelson.

Cool Orange Sherbet

On a dazzling midsummer day, what looks cooler or tastes more refreshing than orange sherbet—especially when it's home-made and rich in pure, natural orange flavor. And this delicious sherbet, with its old-fashioned richness, is simple to make.

The convenient six-ounce can of frozen orange juice concentrate, undiluted, gives tart-sweet flavor and fresh color to the sherbet, while whipped cream makes it wonderfully smooth and creamy. When it's firm, scoop it into your nicest sherbet glasses and garnish with fresh mint and chilled or canned orange sections for a pretty, extra cool touch.

ORANGE SHERBET: Three-quarter cup milk, 2 eggs, slightly beaten, 1/2 cup sugar, divided, 1 cup heavy cream, whipped, 1 can (6 oz) frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted, 1/4 teaspoon salt.

Combine milk, eggs and 1/4 cup of sugar in top of double boiler over hot water. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture coats spoon. Cool. Mix in remaining 1/2 cup sugar, orange juice concentrate and salt. Pour into refrigerator tray and freeze until ice crystals form around edges. Remove from freezer and fold in whipped cream. Return to freezer until firm, at least 3 hours or overnight. Yield: 1 quart.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 16-year-old girl with a very guilty conscience. A few weeks ago I returned home from a trip. It was an all-night train ride and I sat up in the vista-dome.

A very good-looking guy was sitting up there, too. I noticed him right away but pretended not to. Finally he came over and asked if he could sit next to me. I said, "OK."

I'm ashamed to tell you that after about an hour of conversation I let him kiss me. Altogether I would say he kissed me about 12 times. He got off the train an hour earlier than I did and promised to write. So far I haven't heard from him.

I am really a perfect lady and this is the first time I've ever done such a thing. Now I'm ashamed of myself because he probably thinks I'm a cheap pick-up. My girl friend says I shouldn't feel ashamed because I'm a very affectionate person by nature and this is my way of giving friendship. What are your views? — VISTADOME TRAVELLER.

Dear Vista: Use your dome, Girl; you gave a lot more than friendship so don't try to kid Old Granny Annie.

A girl who puts such a cheap price tag on her kisses that she would hand them out to a stranger on a train can hardly be considered a lady.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a grown woman who started to read your column for kicks. Now I find myself, like so many others, saying, "I never dreamed I'd be writing to Ann Landers."

My husband's older brother was married several months ago. We were not able to attend the wedding because it was a long distance away and we had very little notice. From all we have heard, Howard married a lovely woman and we are delighted.

Howard and his bride are coming to visit us in August and I'm ashamed to admit I've been worrying about—of all things—how to greet her.

Should I shake hands and say, "We're so happy to have you in the family?" Or should I give her an affectionate kiss on the cheek? My husband says some people don't like to be too chummy at first meeting. What do you say? —MRS. KNOW-NOTHING.

Dear Mrs.: Don't decide until you meet. Then let your feelings guide you.

If she's a reserved, stand-offish type, you'll know immediately that a friendly handshake is sufficient. If she's affectionate and outgoing you'll be comfortable about kissing her.

Dear Ann Landers: For the third summer in a row our boss's wife has gone to visit her mother for a week. And, as he has done two years previously, he has brought his three bratty kids to the office every day because he can't get a sitter. I'm sure there's not enough money in the world to pay a girl to sit with those savages. They are 11, 9 and 8 years old and totally undisciplined.

The three of them run between the desks bumping into typewriter carriages, fighting, screaming, upsetting mail baskets and using the telephones. One of them has to be taken down the hall to the bathroom every half hour.

The boss has managed to book himself for business luncheons every day this week and we have been instructed to take them to lunch. It is our unanimous opinion that the boss is nuts, and we would like your advice on what to do about this. —UP TO HERE.

Dear Up: The boss may very well be nuts—but he's still the boss. The situation sounds hideous and each of you has the right to tell him so. But be prepared to leave because this may be the price you'll have to pay for speaking out.

'For All'

Happy Solution Sought By B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government served notice Tuesday it wants to settle the valuation of the expropriated B.C. Electric Company to the satisfaction of all.

The announcement was made during a complicated B.C. Supreme Court case over the control of the giant utility, a matter left undecided at least until Thursday.

The government made clear that although it would like to settle the disputed value of the company it took over Aug. 1, 1961, it still plans to appeal Supreme Court judgment upholding the takeover.

ADDITIONAL LAWS

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan indicated he thought that the government could make the takeover valid through additional legislation.

The judge adjourned until Thursday further hearing of motions by the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority to block any move to interfere with the B.C.E.C. as part of the authority.

The B.C. Power Corporation, B.C.E. parent, is seeking to postpone and operate the big power-transportation complex.

NEW INSTRUCTIONS

The adjournment came after M. McFarlane, counsel for the attorney-general, told the court he had "new instructions" about the willingness of the Crown to settle the issue of B.C.E. value.

The value was set at $193,000,000 by Chief Justice Sherwood Lett in a judgment a week ago which found the utility's 1961 expropriation by the province and its amalgamation into the authority constitutionally invalid.

BOTH PARTIES

Mr. McFarlane said the Crown had indicated a willingness to settle the value issue "to the satisfaction of both parties and the government will persist in efforts to achieve that end." He did not elaborate.

Douglas McK. Brown, counsel for B.C.P.C.E., invited communications from government representatives during the adjournment. Lawyers for both sides conferred briefly in the corridor after court recessed and there were indications more formal consultation will be held later.

Review Urged Of Foreign Aid

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian government should review its foreign aid program instead of pouring money into countries which fail to live up to commitments, a doctor who has worked under the Colombo Plan said Tuesday.

Dr. Claude H. Vipond, one of five Canadian doctors and a nurse sent to Malaya two years ago under the Colombo Plan, said in an interview: "I thought there was a real need in that country and help would be welcomed—but I was wrong."

"The Sultan of Pahang is building a $2,500,000 palace while trucks repairing the roads in his state have been donated by the government of Canada."

"We were promised beds for patients, an operating room and the necessary equipment," said Dr. Vipond, "but none of these was ever provided."

Dr. Vipond suggested a seven-point program for future Canadian foreign aid programs:

People Thirst for 'Nice Things'

● A Canadian Press reporter travelling in the Soviet Union finds the country lagging behind the West in standards of material comfort.

By ALAN HARVEY
Second of a Series

MOSCOW (CP)—Gracious living is still a distant vista in the land of the socialist millennium. The flaws are often tiny, but frustrating. There are virtually no deodorants, no baking powders, no cake mixes, no ballpoint pens, no sticky tape, no pencil sharpeners, no pop-up toasters. Toothpaste is gritty. Food lacks finesse.

Some convinced Communists admit the West is ahead in the material race but claim the Soviets are gaining ground. Any way, as one party supporter put it: "You don't know where you're going. You have no goal, no purpose in life. We have an aim, a faith, a principle—working for the collective good."

Nevertheless, Western patience may wear thin at elementary Soviet-style packaging, at the lack of glass and sheen, at the rough edges of living.

Sound and Fury

Plumbing is usually an affair of broken tiles, protruding pipes and primitive fittings. A flush toilet, when it works, produces sound and fury.

This illustrates a Soviet characteristic. They have a strong sense of priorities. Small things bore them. They stake all their chips on the big hand and ignore anything secondary.

When the first Soviet woman soared into space, an exasperated Canadian in Moscow exclaimed:

"To heck with the cosmos! Let them only learn to make matches!"

Tempo Increasing

It must be said without patronizing that this country, starting from way back, is picking up momentum. It is trying for better quality. The people are thirsting for "nice things." Just let a shipment of lace underwear arrive from Czechoslovakia or Hungary and whoosh!

They're sold out faster than it takes to form a queue. Russia's thick cotton women's panties are a laughing stock and prompted a national joke about how such unalluring items can be reconciled with the annual increase in production.

Prices Chastly

Some prices freeze the blood. Vegetables and fruits undergo startling seasonal variations. Cucumbers may sell as high as $2 a pound. An orange can cost 40 cents. A slab of chocolate, slightly larger than an ordinary bar, cost me the equivalent of $2.

Ice cream is tasty and reasonably inexpensive, though two colossal helpings in steaming Samarkand set me back 70 kopecks, nearly $1.

Shoes Costly

Ladies' shoes cause anguish. A really chic pair—the best are from Italy and Britain—cost between $40 to $50 rubles, in the realm of $50 to $65 or about half the average monthly industrial wage. Cheap Russian shoes lack allure and don't stand up to hard wear.

Prayer for Understanding Parents

Dying Child Can Save Baby

DENVER (AP)—The only chance 18-month-old Nancy Joanne Schudies has to live is for some other baby to die. The child lies in her crib in Colorado General Hospital where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Schudies of Scotts-bluff, Neb., wait and pray.

Doctors explain Nancy Joanne was born without ducts in her liver. These are canals by which body fluids and substances are conveyed.

They said Nancy Joanne's only hope is for the transplant of a healthy liver from another child doomed to die from some other ailment. The donor would have to be a child not older than 3.

"It's terrible to think that the only chance for my baby is to find another child which is going to die," said Mrs. Schudies Tuesday. "But I can only pray that we do find parents of such a child somewhere who will understand."

No. 2 City Rebel Target Duvalier Fortifies Palace

PAPA DOC DIGS IN

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The Haitian rebel command reported Tuesday its armed invasion force and army deserters joining it have massed before Haiti's second city, Cap-Haitien, and sent patrols beyond it.

In Port au Prince, the Haitian capital 50 miles to the south, dictator President Francois (Papa Doc) Duvalier was reported flying supplies northward in an effort to keep the invasion from spreading westward and to the south.

Other reports from Port au Prince said Duvalier was fortifying the national palace and concentrating forces for a stand if the invaders cross the mountains or make a new landing from the sea in that area.

Cap-Haitien is a northern port city of 25,000, 90 miles north of the capital, Port au Prince.

UNCONFIRMED REPORTS

There were unconfirmed reports during the day that Cap-Haitien had fallen to the rebels.

In the first news from the front to reach Santo Domingo, Paul Verna, spokesman for the Haitian rebels, said the ranks of the 500 invaders, who landed Monday at Fort Liberté on the north coast of Haiti, have been swelled by regular army deserters.

Cap-Haitien is a northern port city of 25,000, 90 miles north of the capital, Port au Prince.

WOULD SLICE LAND

Verna said the rebel strategy now is to slice off north Haiti from the south from Gonaives on the west coast to Ouanaminthe.

Haitian government charges that the invaders came from the adjoining Dominican Republic were aided by the council of the Organization of American States in Washington at an emergency meeting called on the plea of Fern D. Riquelme, Haiti's OAS representative.

The Dominican Republic has insisted that it has barred the use of Dominican soil for bases of the political foes of Duvalier.

EXILE INVADERS

But Rene Chalmers, Haiti's foreign minister, sent a message to the OAS charging that the exile invaders "departed from the Dominican Republic."

Chalmers' message said it was established that the troops, headed by ex-gen. Leon Cantave "and aided by former officers of the Haitian army" had attacked the border town of Ouanaminthe.

He put the invasion number at about 300 men.

Cantave, their leader, is a tall, white-haired Negro of 53 who has been in political exile for six years.

Complaint Given UN

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Haiti Tuesday deposited with the UN Security Council the text of its complaint to the Organization of American States concerning the invasion of its territory, saying the facts of the case "will undoubtedly be the cause of serious concern in the security council."

West Asks Assurance For Berlin

MOSCOW (AP)—The United States and Britain have proposed that Communist guarantees of Western interests in Berlin be linked to Premier Khrushchev's East-West non-aggression pact proposals, diplomatic sources reported Tuesday.

The Western proposal was put forward by U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Earl of Home in exploratory talks Tuesday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, the sources said.

The two Western foreign policy chiefs also were reported to have told Gromyko they would be unable to negotiate formally on the pact until they have completed consultations with their NATO allies.

NATO DETERMINED

Conference sources said Rusk told Gromyko that the Western allies are not prepared to talk business on a non-aggression pact until the 15-nation NATO alliance makes up its collective mind on the matter.

Details of the proposed link between Berlin and that pact are not expected to be divulged until the completion of NATO consultations.

U.S. State Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman said in Washington Tuesday that Britain and the United States are thinking in terms of unilateral declarations of non-aggression from both sides.

Blast Kills Miners

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—An explosion in the world's deepest gold mine Tuesday killed nine Negro miners and injured 23 others. One was reported missing and believed dead.

The blast, at 9,000 feet, also injured three white men.

Rescuers battling to free the missing miner said they would have to tunnel through about 100 feet of rock.

Yard Probing Possibility Of Perjury in Ward Case

LONDON (Reuters) — Allegations that a witness in the Stephen Ward case confessed to lying at the trial were under investigation by Scotland Yard, police said today.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said the witness, whom he did not identify, denied the allegation.

He said a report on investigations into the case of Jamaican singer Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon would be submitted to the director of public prosecutions. (See also Page 8.)

This appeared to be the report mentioned in The Daily Sketch today. The newspaper says the report would recommend arrest of several persons on charges of conspiring to pervert the course of justice in connection with Gordon's case.

The Scotland Yard spokesman said a previous report was sent to the prosecution director before a criminal appeal court quashed Gordon's three-year sentence for assault last week.

Gordon, a 31-year-old Jamaican jazz singer, is a former lover of Christine Keeler, 21, who lived with the late society osteopath Stephen Ward and whose love affair with former war minister John Profumo caused a national scandal.

The Daily Sketch's chief crime reporter, Peter Duffy, wrote that Scotland Yard officers would recommend the arrests in a report to the director of public prosecutions, Sir Theobald Mathew.

Gordon was released from prison last week after he appealed successfully against his three-year prison sentence for assaulting Miss Keeler, who has been resting at a friend's apartment since last week.

In another development, actress Corinne Grey's lawyer said Tuesday she and her husband will travel to Los Angeles later this week to bring back evidence they claim will "vindicate" Ward.

Dog's Rescue of Master Cancels Date with Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — Greif, a German shepherd who saved his master's life during the weekend, won't have to keep a date with death after all.

Eric Heinze, 35, of Surrey, said he decided last week to have Greif destroyed because he was too friendly for a watchdog.

Heinze fell into a deep pool of water at the bottom of a 30-foot gravel pit on his property during the weekend.

Hurt and unable to pull himself from the water, Heinze was in danger of drowning before Greif added down the steep wall and, grabbing his master's arm with his jaws, pulled him to the side of the pool.

Greif stayed with Heinze for six hours until searchers called by his wife, Anneliese, arrived.

"I'd have drowned without Greif," Heinze said in hospital. "I never thought he had it in him. We'll keep him now."

'Never Better'

How's Old Confederation?

HALIFAX (CP) — Said British Columbia's Premier W. A. C. Bennett: "Confederation has never been in better shape."

He paused and went on: "Canadians from coast to coast understand each other better in 1963 than at any period in our history."

Mr. Bennett said no one wants uniformity in Canada. Understanding and co-operation were essential.

'Needs Changes'

In a separate interview, Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec was asked to comment on the British Columbia leader's view of the status of Confederation.

"Oh, no. We need amendments to the constitution," said Mr. Lesage. Asked what amendments he would seek, Premier Lesage said it was too lengthy a subject to discuss in a corridor interview: "We'd be here all night."

'Nice Things' Missing

Nylon coats would have brought "any price" a few years ago but synthetic models now available are much cheaper. The old shopping scramble is losing some of its desperation now that more goods are becoming available.

Lots of Lineups

But the housewife's round is still tedious. In most stores you line up to determine the price of the article; line up to obtain your ticket from the cashier; and then go back to the first line to pick up what you wanted.

In housing, the Soviets may claim a breakthrough. Every day in Kiev, 50 families hold a housewarming at their new apartment. In Leningrad, the figure is said to be 100 new flats a day. There is plenty of space, since most cities end abruptly in open fields. The last hotel I stayed in overlooked a broad meadow in which 30 cattle grazed.

Sense of Urgency

Amid the boom few exciting buildings appear. The structures are usually prefabricated and there is a sense of urgency about getting a roof over everyone's head, regardless of how it looks.

"The architects must all have dropped dead in the middle of the 19th century," said an American scientific psychologist on his first Moscow visit. "There isn't a single new building of promise or originality."

Service in the state-owned stores seems civil but perhaps lacking in super-salesmanship. Clerks know their jobs are safe.

One Russian defended the system, saying: "I don't think those who serve should necessarily cringe before the customer. It's a matter of personal dignity."

There is little or no night life in the Soviet Union. There are few beckoning cafe exteriors, no places to go for a quiet drink. Some restaurants have dance floors but the bands are usually too loud and the lights too glaring for intimacy.

Food is substantial but will scarcely challenge the haute cuisine of France. Standard favorites are beef Stroganoff, chicken in the Kiev style and beefsteak with an egg on top. I enjoyed cold kvass soup, made of fermented black bread, sour cream, onions and chopped meat.

Elegance is not a characteristic of the Soviet people. For all their strong points, they seem to have a heaviness, a crudeness, a lack of grace except on the ballet stage. For all their essential kindness, they sometimes seem unsure of themselves in public places. A Soviet railway station can be a somewhat depressing sight, with a slightly peasant air about it as families wait patiently with their bundles and their string bags.

Is the indictment of Soviet material standards too severe? Are we in the West obsessed with superficial things? Time may show the superiority of the new Soviet man, but here and now, on a strictly material level, the comparison is between a civilized man and a callow boy.

B.C. Wants Happy Settlement

The price question was brought into the hearing Tuesday. Mr. Justice Rutan said up to now he had turned a deaf ear to "rumors" but warned counsel not to use the motion proceedings as a "gambit" to make a behind-the-scenes settlement that would nullify the court proceedings.

The provincial government paid a total of $172,000,000 for BCE in the takeover of Aug. 1, 1961 but BCP claimed the giant utility was worth at least $225,000,000.

Since then both the government and BCP have agreed to a suggestion by Premier Bennett to have Chief Justice Lett interpret his own $193,000,000 evaluation.

Questioned is whether the valuation included earnings in the two years since expropriation. Premier Bennett says he understands it did but BCP says it did not.

The chief jurist, who since release of his judgment July 29, has become Chief Justice of the B.C. Court of Appeal, was reported however to be reluctant to "interpret" his own judgment.

At Tuesday's adjournment C. W. Brazier, for the authority, supported by Mr. McFarlane, had completed argument on a motion for a stay of proceedings to prevent BCP from moving in on the B.C. Electric.

FOR DISMISSAL

Still to be heard by Mr. Justice Rutan is the BCP-BCE motion for dismissal of BCE president Dr. Harry Purdy as receiver of its assets. He has held the post since the start of a seven-month court suit which resulted in the Lett judgment and return of BCE assets to the corporation.

Mr. Brazier argued that a "picture of confusion" would exist unless the power corporation was ordered to keep its hands off BCE until the outcome of a provincial appeal on the constitutional questions raised by the Lett judgment. The government has said the constitutional issue will go to appeal no matter what the outcome of the valuation issue.

BEYOND POWER

These issues stem from the chief justice's main ruling that three pieces of provincial legislation expropriating the BCE, amalgamating it with the authority the following year and passing a law to prevent suit without consent, were all beyond the power of the province under the British North America Act.

Earlier Mr. Justice Rutan had delayed ruling on a preliminary objection offered Monday by Mr. Brown that since the authority no longer legally existed, it or its counsel had no right to be in court. He said he would hear argument on the motions before deciding.

The price issue was raised by Mr. Brazier who read exchanges of correspondence between government and BCP representatives. It was at this point the judge expressed concern about the court proceeding being used as a "gambit" and said if negotiations on price were under way that would settle the questions posed by the motions, perhaps there should be an adjournment.

He asked Mr. McFarlane to attempt to clarify the price negotiation issue during the luncheon adjournment. The counsel for the attorney-general came back in the afternoon to make his disclosure about new instructions from the government.

URGENTLY DISAPPEARS

The judge said if there was agreement on value by the parties concerned then "the urgency of this application disappears." BCE would not go back into private hands.

Mr. McFarlane said that without an order staying the Lett findings pending appeal, the legislation by which the authority was set up would be invalid.

Mr. Justice Rutan replied he understood that "legislation could be passed quickly to skirt these difficulties."

Mr. McFarlane said all Mr. Brown on behalf of BCP wanted was money "to get out and leave us to settle things ourselves."

"You created that yourself," said the judge, "he didn't create it."

Stock Fraud Charge Made Public

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—A sweeping U.S. grand jury indictment charging a stock fraud against four men in a Canadian iron mine operation was made public Tuesday.

U.S. District Judge Robert P. Anderson took the wraps off a long-secret charge against John Christopher Doyle, chairman of the board of Canadian Javelin Limited of St. John's, Nfld., and New York City and three others.

The indictment names 42 persons it says were victimized in the scheme.

OTHER VICTIMS

The Grand Jury also charged there were other victims "too numerous to mention" but U.S. Attorney Robert C. Zampano said the United States Securities and Exchange Commission was unable to give any figures on other stock purchasers.

Canadian Javelin Limited has 5,166,595 shares outstanding and approximately 18,000 shareholders, the majority in the United States, according to a spokesman for the firm.

SHARES $14

Canadian Javelin is listed on the American Stock Exchange and currently sells for about $14 a share, the spokesman said. The firm holds rights on extensive iron ore properties in Labrador.

The company itself was not indicted. In a prepared statement, P. J. Desantis, treasurer of the firm, said "the charges were old and believed to be terminated" by a civil consent decree in 1956 in which the non-U.S. operation voluntarily participated.

The grand jury indictment was originally returned in New Haven July 2, 1962, but it was ordered kept secret by the court.

Battered Body Mystery

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)—The battered body of a man found in the Nahanni River Monday in the heart of Headless Valley had not been identified Tuesday. Police said the body would remain in Fort Simpson, 625 miles northwest of Edmonton, until it has been identified. The body was beyond recognition.

Ore Shipment Probed

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—RCMP have launched an investigation into the shipment of $100,000 worth of high grade silver ore to Helena, Mont., from the Yukon.

Insp. J. L. Vachon said Tuesday the shipment was believed to have been made some time in June or July by rail from Whitehorse to Skagway, Alaska, by boat to the United States.

Police did not release details of their investigation, but it was believed connected with a report ore was missing from a Yukon mine.

Police said their investigation started last week after they received word a shipment of ore had been traced to Helena. It has been seized by police until RCMP can determine who shipped the ore and its source.

Rescue at Hand For NDP Chief

W. A. Scott wants to rescue New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas.

Victoria's "lighthouse philosopher" is not fooling when he says this.

The NDP leader, Mr. Scott maintains, is a "financial prisoner of war of the trade union bosses and they're not Socialists."

"Mr. Douglas is one of my pin-ups," Mr. Scott says. "He needs help and I'd like to see him get it."

"He is a prisoner in the same sense that Chiang Kai-shek, Nationalist China's president, is a prisoner-of-war of the United States—financially. "I want to rescue Tommy Douglas from those plous trade-union frauds. They—and the present NDP party—are not socialist. The CCF was."

(When the old Co-operative Commonwealth Federation and Canada's unions joined forces politically, they adopted the NDP name.)

NASTY WORD

"You never hear these trade union bosses mention the word 'socialism,'" Mr. Scott said. "I've been to every NDP meeting here, and the word 'socialism' was obviously regarded as the word 'pease' was—like a nasty word not to be spoken in public."

"In one place the NDP has been honest in its position. In a suggested 'Socialist Manifesto' for the party, its authors say:

"We socialist members of the NDP recognize that this organization is not yet a socialist party . . ."

"I have one question," Mr. Scott concluded: "Why?"

Neither Second Rate Nor a Sinking Ship

VANCOUVER (CP)—The University of British Columbia is neither a second-rate institution nor a sinking ship, says President John B. Macdonald.

"I certainly do not subscribe to the view that the program at UBC is deteriorating," said Dr. Macdonald Tuesday. He answered criticism made Monday by Dr. Avrum Stroll of the philosophy department, who predicted mass resignations, including that of the president himself, unless the

Dr. Stroll has resigned his post at UBC and is going to the University of California. The president said the number of resignations this year is not unusual.

Your Good Health

Many Years of Life Ahead If Cancer Victim Recovers

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Sir: Seven months ago I started spitting blood. My right lung was removed because of cancer.

My doctors tell me I am well on the way to recovery but it will be several months before I can return to work.

I also understand that life expectancy in five years for a cancer victim. What is it in your opinion? Please be frank.—B. W. S. (Age 54)

You are wrong about a life expectancy of five years. If you survive for that length of time without further signs of the disease, you should then look forward to quite a few years more. In fact, a much shorter time is indicative of recovery, but not as conclusive.

CANT BE POSITIVE.

Here's the point. As doctors, we can be fairly well convinced that we have removed all of a cancer. However, we can't be positive. We can't be certain that a few malignant cells haven't already started elsewhere.

But our optimism rises with each year. We are habitually careful about promises. Maybe we are overcautious. But we think that after five years we are well warranted in being optimistic.

WERE LUCKY

I have no hesitation in saying that you were lucky. If people wait for bleeding as a sign of lung cancer, they usually have waited too long. To detect lung cancer early, we rely on X-rays—either routine ones or X-rays because of some symptom, mainly a persistent, unexplained cough.

In your case, bleeding began. Yet, since surgery was performed, and the after effects were good, the cancer was detected early enough.

If there had been any visible signs (and I mean "visible" in the laboratory sense) that the disease had spread beyond the right lung, you would have been told. We prefer to tell the unpleasant truth to patients rather than have faith in us undermined by stating platitudes.

Your surgeons mean that after five years you can look forward to a lot more of them.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a person accustomed to sleeping with windows closed in cool weather become acclimated to them being open without catching cold? The man I am going to marry likes lots of fresh air.—E. F. Yes. Fresh, cool air doesn't give people colds. Germs do that. Adequate covers (or an electric blanket) will keep you warm enough. The fresh air may even make you sleep better.

Dear Dr. Molner: After a woman has lost one ovary can she become pregnant?—E. C. P. Yes.

Around the Island

Riding Clubs To Compete On Sunday

PORT ALBERNI — Members of nine riding clubs on Vancouver Island are expected to compete Sunday in a horse show to be held by Alberni Valley Equestrian Club in Recreation Park here.

Competing clubs, members of V.I. Horsemen's Council, include Parksville, Errington, Cedar, Chemainus and Victoria groups as well as the host club.

The show was originally scheduled for July 28. Horses and riders placed in the 14 program events will be awarded points which will count towards the Horse of the Year trophies to be awarded at the end of the season, when a championship show will be held to determine the winners of these trophies and of the awards donated by branch 35, Royal Canadian Legion.

In the show on Sunday, junior classes will start at 11 a.m. senior at 1 p.m. The public will be admitted without charge.

There will be hunter and jumper classes, western and gymkhana events.

DUNCAN — Auditions with Charles Beadnell as adjudicator will be held for prospective participants in this year's talent show of the Cowichan Fall Fair, at the Knights of Pythias Hall on Brice Road, Aug. 24 and 31.

The Cowichan Exhibition will be held Sept. 6 and 7. It is hoped the boosting of prize money, $75, $50 and $25 for first, second and third place respectively, will attract out-aside talent.

The B.C. Herford Association has offered additional prize money amounting to $400 for the Herford section at the exhibition.

Marking the half-century of the Canadian 4-H movement, one of the special events at the fair will be the 50th anniversary calf races for Jersey, Guernsey, Holstein, Ayrshire and all beef breeds.

One of the race conditions is the calf must have been shown in either 4-H or open classes at the fair and to win the race the calf must cross the finish line with its handler.

Trying to cope with the increasing number of entries in the cattle section another $3,000 barn is being built on the grounds and will be ready for the fair.

GANGES — A new Picker X-Ray machine, one of the best of its kind, has been installed at Lady Minto Gulf Islands Hospital.

The new machine operates at the rate of one-sixtieth of a second as compared to one-tenth of a second with the old machine, thereby lessening the danger of radiation.

X-Ray examinations of almost any kind may now be carried out, avoiding the necessity of sending patients off-island, although a qualified radiologist from Duncan is available for interpreting plates and assisting local doctors when required.

A bequest from the late Randolph Bruce, former Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, contributed to the cost of the X-Ray machine.

GALLIANO ISLAND — Galliano Island won the Inter-Islands Bannock Memorial Trophy, Sunday, at the Galliano Golf and Country Club. Play was very close, with Galliano 20½ points, Salt Spring 28 and Pender 14½.

The cup was presented to Dr. H. D. Barner, president and captain of the Galliano team, by Lt.-Col. Jack Brown, in the absence of Eddie Bannock.

Playing for Galliano were Dr. Barner, W. R. Cottrell, W. D. Beach, I. P. Desroche, Jack Howard, E. I. Wintemute, Archie Georgeson, Brehon and

Robin Desroche, for Pender Island; Sandy Crawford, Wally Bradley, Les Bowerman, Don Grimmer, Ted Bowerman, Al Evans, Max Allan, Percy Grimmer, for Salt Spring Island; Jack Scott, Inky Humphreys, Pete Cartwright, Archie McCowan, Doug Cayave, Alec McManus, Reg. Price.

A chicken barbecue and dance followed the play.

VANCOUVER — Ralph Torney, 20, a Nanaimo laborer, was fined $300 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of his and ran driving. Torney was arrested July 27 when he left the scene of a minor two-car collision.

NANAIMO — Dances are to become a regular feature on Newcastle Island.

Following the first dance there Saturday night, organized by the Jaycees, another dance is planned for Aug. 16.

"The first dance at the pavilion was a great success," commented Jaycee Brian Westwood. "We had about 250 people and I'm sure we can double the attendance next time."

PORT ALBERNI — Joseph Zechner, logger, was fined $150 and had his licence suspended for three months when he pleaded guilty in Port Alberni court to a charge of impaired driving.

An RCMP highway patrol vehicle followed the accused through the village of Parksville and via Alberni Highway to a point near Cameron Lake where he was stopped.

Court was told Zechner had been clocked at 70 miles an hour in Parksville.

DUNCAN — Police court: Charles E. Bradley, Duncan, disobeying red traffic light, $10; Garth Velacott, Duncan, no insurance, $15; Marvin J. Conway, Duncan, impaired driving, $100; Roy D. Miller, Duncan, speeding, $17; William D. S. Nash, Lake Cowichan, disobeying stop sign, $12; Robert James Lapsley, Chemainus, throwing bottles out of car, $22; Randolph H. Streit, Duncan, leaving key in ignition, $10; Leonard W. Smith, Duncan, parking on sidewalk, $17; Duncan E. McDougald, Duncan, careless driving, $27; Otto John Stradaas, Cowichan Station, noisy muffler, $12.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator). Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded.

PORT ALBERNI—Action to curtail rowdyism in provincial camping areas will be asked by Port Alberni and district Chamber of Commerce in a letter to the minister of parks and recreation.

Ald. Les Hammer who brought the matter up at the weekly meeting of the chamber, said that campers should not be subjected to "the sort of terroristic activities" of vandals who race through parks in their cars and cut tent ropes.

He suggested that the campsites should be patrolled or that gates should be locked in order that motorists could not enter after 10:30 p.m.

Several instances of nighttime forays in district camp areas have been reported to police, while campers have complained also at the tourist bureau.

In her report for the tourist committee, Mrs. Edna Souther said that 115 out-of-town cars carrying 346 people had stopped at the bureau during the past week. Fifty of the cars were headed over the Alberni-Tofino road to Long Beach.

NEWCOMERS

Of the visitors, 93 were from other B.C. points, 11 from Washington State. Others came from as far away as Oklahoma, Kentucky, Connecticut and Florida on this continent while, according to a report from Valerie Praisley, bureau attendant, some of the travellers were newcomers to this continent, looking around before settling down. One came from Paris and another from Ireland.

Joe Barnes Wins Derby

First Landings Here

Fishermen Making Hay Following Long Tieup

First shipments of salmon started rolling into Victoria yesterday as trollers were able to sell their catches after B.C.'s crippling three-week fishing strike ended Sunday.

Meanwhile, up to 300 gill-nets and 100 seiners were reporting good catches on their short-wave radio sets as the fishing fleet took position at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait for the big net salmon kill.

$10,000,000 LOSS

But this picture of happy activity after the strike was marred by the realization by B.C.'s 6,000 salmon net fishermen that they lost about $10,000,000 worth of catches in sockeye off Fraser River delta.

"This is only the tail end of the sockeye run," Kenneth Campbell, secretary-manager of the Fisheries Association of B.C. told the Colonist last night.

UP FRASER RIVER

"The bulk of the huge Chilko run has gone up the Fraser River, a loss of up to $10,000,000."

The 400 fishing boats in the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait however were just in time Sunday to start fishing as the strike ended simultaneously with the official Aug. 4 opening of net fishing in those waters.

BULK IN THURSDAY

In Victoria, packing companies handled several shipments of troll-caught salmon early this week, but spokesmen said they didn't expect bulk shipments until Thursday.

Port Renfrew, home port of seiners and gillnetters, has become a fish boom town overnight with about 1,200 to 1,400 fishermen and shoreworkers setting up shop in the little community with a normal population of 300 to 500 persons.

LIKE BIG CITY

"There is a lot of action here now," said one bewildered Port Renfrew resident. "It looks like a big city."

Fishermen are interested in catching as many fish in as short a time as possible after their three-week tieup.

"The seiners and gillnetters are running back and forth all the time," another Port Renfrew resident said.

FISH BUYERS ARRIVE

About six bigtime fish buyers have invaded Port Renfrew and are competing against traditionally slightly higher prices offered fishermen by independent cash buyers.

While the dickering is going on, floating packer-workers are busy unloading gillnetters—who fish by night—and seiners—who fish by day—in a round-the-clock effort to supply Vancouver and mainland canneries with salmon.

TRANSFER BOATS

In order to do so, about 20 "transfer" boats shuttle between Port Renfrew and the mainland.

"Evening is the best time to watch," said a Port Renfrew resident. "The seiners are coming in around 5 p.m. while the gillnetters are preparing to go out for the night."

Current prices paid to fishermen by regular buyers is 34 cents a pound for sockeye "in the round," said Mr. Campbell. In the round means fish as it comes out of the water ... with heads, tails and guts.

Tossing 10,000 pounds of salmon from independent fish buyer's truck into receptacles at Oakland Industries Ltd., cannery on Wharf Street yesterday are Gordie Davies, left,

and Henry Longos, 35. Troll-caught salmon was among first to be unloaded after three-week fishing strike ended Saturday.—(Bud Kinsman)

E & N to Be Asked For Better Service

DUNCAN—The E & N Railroad Company will be asked by the Vancouver Island ratepayers' Association to improve its daily passenger service between Victoria and Courtenay, according to past president George Bonner of Cobble Hill and W. A. Wilkinson of Cedar.

In the meantime, Mr. Bonner said, the railroad company will be requested to reconsider the timetable of the present service to suit patrons along the line.

Islands Lose Power Before Cable Hookup

PENDER ISLAND — Residents of Galiano, Mayne and the Pender Islands were without electric power for more than 12 hours Monday, beginning at about 9:30 a.m.

Trouble resulted when the cable linking Salt Spring and Galiano was disconnected prior to connection of a new cable.

The auxiliary plant on Galiano found the power load hard to handle and fuses blew. Full power was not restored until about 10 p.m.

Summer resorts and lodges meanwhile were left without hot water or cooking facilities; housewives stood looking at idle washers filled with laundry and refrigerators dripped ice cream.

Automatic lifts at Sturdies Bay and Village Bay had to be lowered by hand winch, delaying the Queen of the Islands and the Pender Queen more than an hour in docking.

The group's first vice-president, Mr. Wilkinson, became the new president succeeding W. C. Hamilton who died two weeks ago.

Mr. Bonner said it was decided to continue the policy as laid out by the late Mr. Hamilton. It is planned to divide the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association's membership into six zones for greater efficiency.

The railroad company's dayliner connects Victoria with Up-Island points in one round trip leaving the capital in the morning and returning in the evening. Mr. Bonner said at a recent informal meeting of the same members of the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association's executive.

Long, Hard Road Ahead for Gordon

By MIKE GADSBY
The road back for Gordon Rasmussen will be a long one. But after lying unconscious for nearly two months—much of the time near death—the 10-year-old Nanaimo boy has started along the long road to recovery from the severe brain damage which threatened his life.

***
Gordon was riding his bicycle near his home at Nanaimo on May 12—Mother's Day—when he struck the concrete abutment of a carport and was thrown head-first to the concrete floor.

He was rushed unconscious to St. Joseph's Hospital in Victoria where he was examined by a neurosurgeon who discovered contusions, or "bruises" to the boy's brain in an exploratory operation.

Gordon was immediately given hypothermia treatment to prevent the brain damage from becoming worse while giving it a chance to heal.

***

This is a process whereby the body temperature of the patient is lowered, thus dulling the senses and making them relatively immune to further damage.

The treatment is similar to putting the patient in a state of hibernation at the lowered temperature—in Gordon's case, 80 degrees Fahrenheit.

He spent three weeks in this condition.

***

His doctor explained that brain contusions usually cause permanent mental deterioration, which, it was feared for a long time, would be Gordon's fate.

His doctor said there was one period of about a week when Gordon was not expected to live, but once he got through that his condition began to improve steadily.

His father, James, who works at the Harmac pulp mill near Nanaimo, used to visit Gordon nearly every day. Neither of his parents ever gave up hope that he would live.

Once he was out of danger and had regained consciousness, the long process of physical and occupational therapy began in an effort to bring him back to a condition of useful existence.

His parents now visit him only on weekends, according to Solarium rules, and are still optimistic about his future.

His doctor, who does not wish his name mentioned because of medical ethics, says Gordon's improvement over the past two or three weeks has been encouraging, and he hopes to keep him in the Solarium until the new year.

"He will show most improvement in the first year following the accident," the doctor said. "From then on he should improve more along with his natural mental growth."

Whether or not his recovery will be complete enough to allow him to lead a completely normal life is still not known, he said, although his chances are now good.

Happy Solution Sought By B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government served notice Tuesday it wants to settle the valuation of the expropriated B.C. Electric Company to the satisfaction of all.

The announcement was made during a complicated B.C. Supreme Court case over the control of the giant utility, a matter left undecided at least until Thursday.

The government made clear that although it would like to settle the disputed value of the company it took over Aug. 1, 1961, it still plans to appeal a Supreme Court judgment upsetting the takeover.

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan indicated he thought that the government could make the takeover valid through additional legislation.

The judge adjourned until Thursday further hearing of motions by the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority to block any move to interfere with the BCE as part of the authority.

The B.C. Power Corporation, BCE parent, is seeking to repossess and operate the big power-gas-transportation complex.

NEW INSTRUCTIONS
The adjournment came after M. M. McFarlane, counsel for the attorney-general, told the court he had "new instructions" about the willingness of the Crown to settle the issue of BCE value.

The value was set at $192,000,000 by Chief Justice Sherwood Lett in a judgment a week ago which found the utility's 1961 expropriation by the province and its amalgamation into the authority constitutionally invalid.

BOTH PARTIES
Mr. McFarlane said the Crown had indicated a willingness to settle the value issue "to the satisfaction of both parties" and the government will persist in efforts to achieve that end. He did not elaborate.

Douglas McK. Brown, counsel for BCP-BCE, invited communications from government representatives during the adjournment. Lawyers for both sides conferred briefly in the corridor after court recessed and there were indications more formal consultation will be held later.

Review Urged Of Foreign Aid

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian government should review its foreign aid program instead of pouring money into countries which fail to live up to commitments, a doctor who has worked under the Colombo Plan said Tuesday.

Dr. Claude H. Vipond, one of five Canadian doctors and a nurse sent to Malaya two years ago under the Colombo Plan, said in an interview: "I thought there was a real need in that country and help would be welcomed—but I was wrong."

"The Sultan of Pahang is building a $2,500,000 palace while trucks repairing the roads in his state have been donated by the government of Canada."

"We were promised beds for patients, an operating room and the necessary equipment," said Dr. Vipond. "but none of these was ever provided."

Dr. Vipond suggested a seven-point program for future Canadian foreign aid programs:

- Direct aid only to basic social needs such as food, clothing, education and medicine, including birth control.
- Recipient countries must show a will to improve their own conditions, devoting reasonable proportions of their own resources to the areas designated as needy.
- Canada must have administrative authority—more than just an advisory capacity.
- All aid must be clearly designated as to origin, enabling recipients and Canadians to judge its effectiveness.
- External aid officials should have had experience in the field.
- Canadian aid personnel should be distinctively Canadian.
- Canadian aid should be more concentrated in fewer areas. Canada should apply its aid in several fields in one or two countries.

Pants Big Joke

People Thirst for 'Nice Things'

● A Canadian Press reporter travelling in the Soviet Union finds the country lagging behind the West in standards of material comfort.

By ALAN HARVEY
Second of a Series

MOSCOW (CP)—Gracious living is still a distant vista in the land of the socialist millennium. The flaws are often tiny, but frustrating. There are virtually no deodorants, no baking powders, no cake mixes, no ballpoint pens, no sticky tape, no pencil sharpeners, no pop-up toasters. Toothpaste is gritty. Food lacks finesse.

Some convinced Communists admit the West is ahead in the material race but claim the Soviets are gaining ground. Anyway, as one party supporter put it: "You don't know where you're going. You have no goal, no purpose in life. We have an aim, a faith, a principle—working for the collective good."

Nevertheless, Western patience may wear thin at elementary Soviet-style packaging, at the lack of gloss and sheen, at the rough edges of living.

Sound and Fury

Plumbing is usually an affair of broken tiles, protruding pipes and primitive fittings. A flush toilet, when it works, produces sound and fury. This illustrates a Soviet characteristic. They have a strong sense of priorities. Small things bore them. They stake all their chips on the big hand and ignore anything secondary. When the first Soviet woman soared into space, an exasperated Canadian in Moscow exclaimed: "To heck with the cosmos-nauts! Let them only learn to make matches!"

Tempo Increasing

It must be said without patronizing that this country, starting from way back, is picking up momentum. It is trying for better quality. The people are thirsting for "nice things." Just let a shipment of lace underwear arrive from Czechoslovakia or Hungary and whoosh!—they're sold out faster than it takes to form a queue. Russia's thick cotton women's panties are a laughing stock and prompted a national joke about how such unalluring items can be reconciled with the annual increase in production.

Prices Chastly

Some prices freeze the blood. Vegetables and fruits undergo startling seasonal variations. Cucumbers may sell as high as $2 a pound. An orange can cost 40 cents. A slab of chocolate, slightly larger than an ordinary bar, cost me the equivalent of $2.

Ice cream is tasty and reasonably inexpensive, though two colossal helpings in steaming Samarkand set me back 70 kopecks, nearly $1.

Shoes Costly

Ladies' shoes cause anguish. A really chic pair—the best are from Italy and Britain—cost between 40 to 50 rubles, in the realm of $50 to $65 or about half the average monthly industrial wage. Cheap Russian shoes lack allure and don't stand up to hard wear.

Prayer for Understanding Parents

Dying Child Can Save Baby

DENVER (AP)—The only chance 10-month-old Nancy Joanne Schudies has to live is for some other baby to die. The child lies in her crib in Colorado General Hospital where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Schudies of Scotts-bluff, Neb., wait and pray. Doctors explain Nancy Joanne was born without ducts in her liver. These are canals by which body fluids and substances are conveyed.

They said Nancy Joanne's only hope is for the transplant of a healthy liver from another child doomed to die from some other ailment. The donor would have to be a child not older than 3.

"It's terrible to think that the only chance for my baby is to find another child which is going to die," said Mrs. Schudies Tuesday. "but I can only pray that we do find parents of such a child somewhere who will understand."

PERJURY ANGLES PROBED BY YARD

LONDON (Reuters)—Allegations that a witness in the Stephen Ward case confessed to lying at the trial were under investigation by Scotland Yard, police said today.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said the witness, whom he did not identify, denied the allegation.

He said a report on investigations into the case of Jamaican singer Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon would be submitted to the director of public prosecutions. (See also Page A3)

This appeared to be the report mentioned in The Daily Sketch today. The newspaper says the report would recommend arrest of several persons on charges of conspiring to pervert the course of justice in connection with Gordon's case.

The Scotland Yard spokesman said a previous report was sent to the prosecution director before a criminal appeal court quashed Gordon's three-year sentence for assault last week.

Gordon, a 31-year-old Jamaican jazz singer, is a former lover of Christine Keeler, 21, who lived with the late society osteopath Stephen Ward and whose love affair with former war minister John Profumo caused a national scandal.

The Daily Sketch's chief crime reporter, Peter Duffy, wrote that Scotland Yard officers would recommend the arrests in a report to the director of public prosecutions, Sir Theobald Mathew.

The police report also suggests that additional charges of perjury should be preferred against individual persons. The Daily Sketch report says.

Gordon was released from prison last week after he appealed successfully against his three-year prison sentence for assaulting Miss Keeler, who has been resting at a friend's apartment since last week.

Gordon went straight to Scotland Yard after being released to give information voluntarily to the police, his lawyer said.

The Daily Sketch article says the police report to the director of public prosecutions contains lengthy statements by Gordon, Miss Keeler and other persons.

In another development, actress Corinne Grey's lawyer said Tuesday she and her husband will travel to Los Angeles later this week to bring back evidence they claim will "vindicate" Ward.

West Asks Assurance For Berlin

MOSCOW (AP)—The United States and Britain have proposed that Communist guarantees of Western interests in Berlin be linked to Premier Khrushchev's East-West non-aggression pact proposal, diplomatic sources reported Tuesday.

The Western proposal was put forward by U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Earl of Home in exploratory talks Tuesday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, the sources said.

The two Western foreign policy chiefs also were reported to have told Gromyko they would be unable to negotiate formally on the pact until they have completed consultations with their NATO allies.

NATO DECISION

Conference sources said Rusk told Gromyko that the Western allies are not prepared to talk business on a non-aggression pact until the 15-nation NATO alliance makes up its collective mind on the matter.

Details of the proposed link between Berlin and that pact are not expected to be divulged until the completion of NATO consultations.

U.S. State Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman said in Washington Tuesday that Britain and the United States are thinking in terms of unilateral declarations of non-aggression from both sides.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—An explosion in the world's deepest gold mine Tuesday killed nine Negro miners and injured 23 others. One was reported missing and believed dead.

Rescuers battling to free the missing miner said they would have to tunnel through about 100 feet of rock.

Duvalier Fortifies Palace As No. 2 City Rebel Target

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—The Haitian rebel command reported Tuesday its armed invasion force and army deserters joining it have massed before Haiti's second city, Cap Haitien, and sent patrols beyond it.

In Port au Prince, the Haitian capital 90 miles to the south, dictator President Francois (Papa Doc) Duvalier was reported flying supplies northward in an effort to keep the invaders from spreading westward and to the south.

Rugged country broken only by mountain roads and trails stands between the invaders in the north and the forces of Duvalier, including the Ton Ton Macoutes, the terrorist, security force Duvalier built up to offset military disloyalties.

Other reports from Port au Prince said Duvalier was fortifying the national palace and concentrating forces for a stand if the invaders cross the mountains or make a new landing from the sea in that area.

There were unconfirmed reports during the day that Cap Haitien had fallen to the rebels. In the first news from the front to reach Santo Domingo, Paul Verna, spokesman for the Haitian rebels, said the ranks of the 500 invaders, who landed Monday at Fort Liberté on the north coast of Haiti, have been swelled by regular army deserters.

Cap Haitien is a northern port city of 25,000, 90 miles north of the capital, Port au Prince.

The Dominican Republic has insisted that it has barred the use of Dominican soil for bases of the political foes of Duvalier. But Rene Chalmers, Haiti's foreign minister, sent a message to the OAS charging that the exile invaders "departed from the Dominican Republic."

He put the invasion number at about 300 men.

Cantave, their leader, is a tall, white-haired Negro of 52 who has been in political exile for six years.

Dog's Rescue of Master Cancels Date with Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — Grief, a German shepherd who saved his master's life during the weekend, won't have to keep a date with death after all.

Eric Heinze, 35, of Surrey, said he decided last week to have Grief destroyed because he was too friendly for a watchdog.

Heinze fell into a deep pool of water at the bottom of a 50-foot gravel pit on his property during the weekend. Hurt and unable to pull himself from the water, Heinze was in danger of drowning before Grief slid down the steep wall and, grabbing his master's arm with his jaws, pulled him to the side of the pool.

Grief stayed with Heinze for six hours until searchers called by his wife, Anneliese, arrived.

"I'd have drowned without Grief," Heinze said in hospital. "I never thought he had it in him. We'll keep him now."

'Never Better'

How's Old Confederation?

HALIFAX (CP) — Said British Columbia's Premier W. A. C. Bennett: "Confederation has never been in better shape."

He paused and went on: "Canada from coast to coast understands each other better in 1963 than at any period in our history."

Mr. Bennett said no one wants uniformity in Canada. Understanding and co-operation were essential.

'Needs Changes'

In a separate interview, Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec was asked to comment on the British Columbia leader's view of the status of Confederation.

"Oh, no. We need amendments to the constitution," said Mr. Lesage. Asked what amendments he would seek, Premier Lesage said it was too lengthy a subject to discuss in a corridor interview. "We'd be here all night."
